volume of lectures and addresses is the persuasion that present day educators are viewing the history of education with short sighted vision an impression prevails that only the last few generations have done work of serious significance in education the history of old time education is neglected or is treated as of at most antiquarian interest and there is a failure to understand its true value the connecting link between the lectures and addresses is the effort to express in terms of the present what educators were doing in the past once upon a time when i proclaimed the happiness of the english workmen of the middle ages the very positive objection was raised how could they be happy since their wages were only a few cents a day for response it was only necessary to point out that for his eight cents the minimum wage by act of parliament the workman could buy a pair of handmade shoes that being the maximum price established by law and other necessaries at similar prices if old time education is studied with this same care to translate its meaning into modern values then the very oldest education of which we have any record takes on significance even for our time about the these old periods of education a great many teachers have thought the ideas valuable and suggestive and so i am tempted to publish them in book form there is an additional reason that of wishing to create a bond of sympathy between the two systems of education that have grown up in this country for some three generations now catholic educators have been independently building up a system of education from the elementary schools to the university the american world of education is coming to recognize how much they have accomplished there has even been some curiosity expressed as to how it was all done in spite of apparently insuperable obstacles one phase of catholic education its thorough going conservatism and definite effort to value the past properly and take advantage of its precious les sons is here represented about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks com this book is a reproduction of an the presbyterian high schools at greenwood abbeville district s august 2nd 1850 and the truth is there is a great deal of imposture and empiricism among the professors of the art of themselves this is there are quacks in any business is because the people encourage quackery if the world patronises imposture and experiment else there would be none it is just as true in teaching as in any thing else that the supply will be according to the demand and if novelties and high sounding pretensions are popular and pay well men will be found ready and able to present them at a moment's warning i have no new theory on the subject of education to offer i have made no grand invention or discovery unless it be the discovery that our fathers understood the subject about as well as we do and that the pretended improvements of the day in so far as they affect principles and systems and not mere details are a vanity and a lie i have no toleration for radical innovators in the delicate business of training immortal minds the physician who tries experiments with the lives and health of his patients is justly and unsparingly condemned far less indulgence should be given him who plays charlatanical pranks with the souls and mental well being of his pupils the civilized world after three thousand years experience in the art of education can be taught little by the upstarts of to day and the noisy heralds of new methods have generally an object either to conceal essential defects in themselves or to practice on the credulity of a confiding public some years ago an impatient adventurer made a descent on the quiet people of a neighboring district and established among them an academy on some new plan with a pompous name and much pretension he professed to teach six things in the time usually devoted to one and for a short season largely enjoyed the favor and patronage of the community but after having gulled and swindled the people taught their children nothing and made them pay well for it he suddenly disappeared between the close of one day and the dawn of another about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books arithmetic triangulation life histories and design studies this volume is a path breaking contribution to the study of efforts of diaspora indigenous and minority groups broadly defined to use education formal and informal to sustain cultural continuity while grappling with the influences and demands of wider globalizing nationalizing or other homogenizing and assimilatory forces particular attention is given to groups that use educational elements other than second language teaching alone in programs to sustain their particular cultural traditions the focus of the book on cultural sustainability changes the nature of questions posed in multicultural education from those that address the opening of boundaries to issues of preserving boundaries in an open yet sustainable way as forced and elective immigration trends are changing the composition of societies and the educational systems within them bringing a rich diversity of cultural experience to the teaching learning process diaspora indigenous and minority groups are looking more and more for ways to sustain their cultures in the context of wider socio political influences this volume is a first opportunity to consider critically multicultural efforts in dialogue with educational options that are culturally particularistic but at the same time tolerant academics will find this an excellent reference book
