viz media excerpt from explorers of the dawn the publisher has asked me to write a note of introduction to this book surely it needs none but it is a pleasant task to write prefaces for other people s books when one writes a preface to a book of one s own one naturally grovels deprecates and has no opportunity to call the friendly reader s attention to what the author considers the beauties and significances of the work how agreeable then to be able to do this service for another moreover one hopes that such a service may not be wholly vain every book has its own special audience for whom very likely unconsciously it was written the group of people far spread over the curve of earth who will find in that particular book just the sort of magic and wisdom that they seek and as every one who has studied the book business knows books very often tragically miss just the public that was waiting for them it is such an obscure and nebulous problem getting the book into the hands of the people to whom it will appeal about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works ponencias del coloquio celebrado en lovaina en mayo de 2000
