Aesthetics and Experience in Music Performance 2008-12-11 nineteenth century british periodicals for girls and women offer a wealth of material to understand how girls and women fit into their social and cultural worlds of which music making was an important part the girl s own paper first published in 1880 stands out because of its rich musical content keeping practical usefulness as a research tool and as a guide to further reading in mind judith barger has catalogued the musical content found in the weekly and later monthly issues during the magazine s first thirty years in music scores instalments of serialized fiction about musicians music related nonfiction poetry with a musical title or theme illustrations depicting music making and replies to musical correspondents the book s introductory chapter reveals how content in the girl s own paper changed over time to reflect a shift in women s music making from a female accomplishment to an increasingly professional role within the discipline using the piano girl as a case study a comparison with musical content found in the boy s own paper over the same time span offers additional insight into musical content chosen for the girls magazine a user s guide precedes the chronological annotated catalogue the indexes that follow reveal the magazine s diversity of approach to the subject of music

Research Council Bulletin 1922 doctoral thesis dissertation from the year 2023 in the subject musicology miscellaneous grade distinction university of venda course phd in arts and social sciences language english abstract a gap existed in the literature focusing on research overall between music aptitude and mathematical achievement within a south african context the purpose of the study was to investigate the effect of music aptitude on mathematical achievement and to evaluate the most appropriate instruments for measuring musical talents and juxtaposing them with mathematical achievement using gordon s amma tool to establish the connection between musical acumen and mathematical achievement in randomly selected learners this study presented data that is now available for use by other researchers the researcher used exploratory designs to generalise assess and test qualitative exploratory results and to see if they could be generalised to a sample and a population as outlined in this dissertation this research was evaluated in both qualitative and quantitative phases the researcher focussed on how students of different ages gender intelligence levels and musical abilities reacted to the amma music aptitude test the researcher was intrigued to see that most of the music students in the secondary school could compose with ease without prior knowledge of composition thus demonstrating an excellent theoretical background which was prevalent in his discussions with colleagues having studied the previous school curriculum they were exposed to since their childhood in primary school the researcher could not find any relevant material linked to composition form structure or even analysis conversations with colleagues in the mathematical department revealed that the same students were doing extremely well academically in their mathematical subjects this raised further questions for the researcher was this merely a coincidence or was this increase in academic achievement due to the impact of their music studies most parents in the community encouraged their children to attend private schools and went out of their way financially to provide for a good education reinforcing good will and intentions to foster a brighter future for these learners for students to achieve excellent results aptitude played a prominent role in their musical development

Music Library and Research Skills 2005 scholarly research paper from the year 2012 in the subject psychology general grade 2 1 south bank university london lsbu ahs course psychology language english comment music influence on cognitive ability ravens matrices iq test after manipulated maze tasks abstract the current study examines the influence of music on cognitive ability participants performed a series of maze tasks and ravens matrices tests under variable conditions accompanied by music classified as either stimulating or sedative the musical pieces chosen were both classical beethoven s moonlight sonata sedative and vivaldi s spring stimulating there were 60 participants in total n 60 out of whom 37 were females and 23 male participants these formed four different condition groups each with 15 participants the frustration f group with unsolvable mazes were played either sedative or stimulating music likewise the non frustration nf group with solvable mazes was also played either of the music types it was predicted that sedative music would have a more relaxing effect on participants after a frustration condition compared to the stimulating music furthermore as predicted both music styles reduced anxiety levels corresponding to better scores on the ravens matrices the ravens matrices mean scores were higher for the frustration condition indicating that frustrating situations can actually produce better iq results if combined with the right music type the findings indicate a strong connection between music and cognitive performance
