demonstrates how students and educators can resist narrow utilitarian views of higher education's purpose while the search for meaning and purpose appears to be a constant throughout human history there are characteristics about our current time period that make this search different from any other previous time particularly for college students in this book perry l glanzer jonathan p hill and byron r johnson explore college students search for meaning and purpose and the role that higher education plays to shed empirical light on this complex issue the authors draw on in depth interviews with four hundred college students from different types of institutions across the united states they also analyze three sets of national survey data the national study of youth and religion college students beliefs and values and their own gallup conducted survey of 2 500 college students their research identifies important social educational and cultural influences that shape students quests and the answers they find arguing against a utilitarian view of education glanzer hill and johnson conclude that colleges and universities can and should cultivate and aid students in their journeys and they offer suggestions for doing so

1 1 motivation this book is based on the view that both public and private decision making in practice can often be improved upon by means of formal nonnative decision models and methods to some extent the validity of this statement can be measured by the impressive number of successes of disciplines as operations research and management science however as witnessed by the many discussions in the professional journals in these fields many models and methods do not completely meet the requirements of decision making in practice of all possible origins of these clear shortcomings we mainly focus on only one the fact that most of these models and methods are unsuitable for decision situations in which multiple and possibly conflicting objectives play a role because they are concentrated on the optimal fulfilment of only one objective the need to account for multiple goals was observed relatively early Hoffman 1955 while describing what seem to be the principal areas in linear programming where new ideas and new methods are needed gives an example with conflicting goals in this problem the assignment of relative weights is a great problem for the planning staff and is probably not the province of the mathematician engaged in solving this problem these remarks were true precursors of later developments nevertheless the need for methods dealing with multiple goals was not widely recognized until much later
