Freelancing for Newspapers 2007-05-01 excerpt from how to write special feature articles a handbook for reporters correspondents and free lance writers who desire to contribute to popular magazines and magazine sections of newspapers to train students to write articles for newspapers and popular magazines may perhaps be regarded by some college instructors in composition as an undertaking scarcely worth their while they would doubtless prefer to encourage their students to write what is commonly called literature the fact remains nevertheless that the average undergraduate cannot write anything that approximates literature whereas experience has shown that many students can write acceptable popular articles moreover since the overwhelming majority of americans read only newspapers and magazines it is by no means an unimportant task for our universities to train writers to supply the steady demand for well written articles the late walter hines page founder of the world s work and former editor of the atlantic monthly presented the whole situation effectively in an article on the writer and the university when he wrote about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

reading that creates a readership benedict anderson s concept of imagined communities fits into this context incredibly well although a reader might not know all the other readers of his or her newspaper they still have one thing in common they have all held the same information in their hands and read the same news thus the reader being aware of this indirectly shared experience imagines his community of fellow readers while anderson refers to communities that overcome all distances i would apply his model to distances in time it is because of the lasting effect of the written word that although i am culturally embedded in the 21st century i can still read be impressed and influenced by or even identify with an article that is almost one hundred years old i leaf through the same pages look at the same pictures and think about the same author as did other readers back then this process as an extension of anderson s theory makes me a part of an imagined community that knows no borders neither in space nor in time
