I primi gesuiti 1999 this collection of essays highlights cultural features and processes which characterized translation practice under the dictatorships of benito mussolini 1922 1940 and francisco franco 1939 1975 in spite of the different timeline some similarities and parallelisms may be drawn between the power of the fascist and the francoist censorships exerted on the italian and spanish publishing and translation policies entrusted to european specialists this collection of articles brings to the fore the microhistory that exists behind every publishing proposal whether collective or individual to translate a foreign woman writer during those two totalitarian political periods the nine chapters presented here are not a global study of the history of translation in those black times in contemporary culture but rather a collection of varied cases small stories of publishers collections translations and translators that despite many disappointments but with the occasional success managed to undermine the ideological and literary currents of the dictatorships of mussolini and franco

Le orazioni 1874 this book explores the mechanisms by which top incomes are achieved through work in today s advanced economies and asks to what extent current extreme inequalities are compatible with widely held values of social justice reflecting on the heterogeneity of the working rich the authors argue that very high earnings often result not from heightened competition induced by globalization but rather from a lack of competition or at best deficient competition it is proposed that such incomes cannot be justified in terms of efficiency or merit and do not generate positive trickle down effects with benefits for all of society rather extreme inequalities in earnings risk jeopardizing equality of opportunity the book concludes by offering a wide array of innovative policy prescriptions that are not punitive in intent and are not merely directed toward income redistribution readers will find the book to be a fascinating source of insights into the subject of the working rich which remains largely unexplored within both economics and ethics

Foreign Women Authors under Fascism and Francoism 2018-11-30 in this book shaun blanchard argues that the roots of the vatican ii reforms must be pushed back beyond the widely acknowledged twentieth century forerunners of the council beyond newman and the tübingen school in the nineteenth century to the eighteenth century when a variety of reform movements attempted ressourcement and aggiornamento this close study of the synod of pistoia 1786 sheds surprising new light on the nature of church reform and the roots of the second vatican council 1962 65 the high water mark of the late jansenist reform movement this tuscan diocesan synod was harshly condemned by pope pius vi in the bull auctorem fidei 1794 and in the increasingly ultramontane nineteenth century church the late jansenist movement was totally discredited nevertheless much of the pistoian agenda an
