new public places recently created on the post industrial waterfront of the river clyde in the city of glasgow uk by seeing where and why certain public places fail direct and informed interventions can be made to improve them and through this contribute to the building of more attractive and sustainable cities by adopting a multi disciplinary approach to shed light on this slippery concept this book shows how urban design can complement other disciplines when tackling the complex task of understanding and improving the built environment s public realm it also bridges the gap between theory and practice as it draws from empirical research to suggest more quantitative approaches towards auditing and improving public places
