this book is the first thorough study of the justice department s pattern or practice program examining how the program works how court imposed consent decrees implement needed reforms and discussing the various challenges the program has encountered over nearly thirty years

Reconfigurable Computing: Architectures and Applications this book achieves a goal that was set 25 years ago when the ham theory of human memory was published this theory reflected one of a number of then current efforts to create a theory of human cognition that met the twin goals of precision and complexity up until then the standard for precision had been the mathematical theories of the 1950s and 1960s these theories took the form of precise models of specific experiments along with some informal verbally stated understanding of how they could be extended to new experiments they seemed to fall far short of capturing the breadth and power of human cognition that was being demonstrated by the new experimental work in human cognition the next 10 years saw two major efforts to address the problems of scope in 1976 the act theory was first described and included a production rule system of procedural memory to complement ham s declarative memory this provided a computationally adequate system which was indeed capable of accounting for all sorts of cognition in 1993 a new version of act act r was published this was an effort to summarize the theoretical progress made on skill acquisition in the intervening 10 years and to tune the subsymbolic level of act r with the insights of the rational analysis of cognition although the appearance of generally available full function code set off a series of events which was hardly planned it resulted in this book the catalyst for this was the emergence of a user community lebiere insisted that assembling a critical mass of users was essential to the ultimate success of the theory and that a physical gathering was the only way to achieve that goal this resulted in the first annual act r summer school and workshop held in 1994 in writing the book the authors became seized by an aspiration that went beyond just describing the theory correctly they decided to try to display what the theory could do by collecting together and describing some of its in house applications this book reflects decades of work in act r accumulated by many researchers the chapters are authored by the people that did that particular work no doubt the reader will be impressed by the scope of the research and the quality of the individual work less apparent but no less important was the effort that everyone put into achieving the overall consistency and technical integrity of the book this is the first work in cognitive science to precisely model such a wide range of phenomena with a single theory in 1966 the first meeting of the association for the study of attention and performance was held in the netherlands to promote the emerging science of cognitive psychology this volume is based on the most recent conference held in israel thirty years later the focus of the conference was the interaction between theory and application the organizers chose the specific topic cognitive regulation of performance because it is an area where contemporary theories of cognitive processes meet the everyday challenges posed by human interactions with complex systems present day technological systems impose on the operator a variety of supervisory functions such as input and output monitoring allocation of cognitive resources choice of strategies and regulation of cognitive operations a challenge for engineers and designers is to accommodate the cognitive requirements called for by these systems the book is divided into four sections the presentation and representation of information cognitive regulation of acquisition and performance consciousness and behavior and special populations aging and neurological disorders contributors nicole d anderson moshe bar lynn bardell alice e barnes irving biederman robert a bjork richard a block fergus i m craik heiner deubel john dunlosky ido erev ronald fisher john m flach barry goettl morris goldsmith daniel gopher lynn hasher okihide hikosaka larry l jacoby peter kalocsai colleen kelley david e kieras roberta klatzky asher koriat arthur f kramer elisabetta ladavas john l larish susan j lederman john long cynthia p may guiliana mazzoni brian mcelree david meyer satoru miyauchi neville moray louis narens thomas o nelson raymond s nickerson lynne reder j wesley regian ian robertson wolfgang schneider christian d schunn wayne shebilske shinsuke shimojo suresh subramaniam tom n trainham jehoshua tsal timothy a weber christopher wickens rose t zacks dan zakay goulty tells the story from the perspective of the ordinary sailor or officer who was there the northern mariner although many books have been written about naval actions during the second world war histories and memoirs in particular few books have attempted to encompass the extraordinary variety of the experience of the war at sea that is why james goulty s vivid survey is of such value sailors in the royal navy and the merchant navy experienced a war fought on a massive scale on every ocean of the world in a diverse range of vessels from battleships aircraft carriers and submarines to merchant ships and fishing boats their recollections are as varied as the ships they served in and they take the reader through the entire maritime war as it was perceived at the time by those who had direct personal knowledge of it throughout the book the emphasis is on the experience of individuals their recruitment and training their expectations and the reality they encountered on active service in many different offensive and defensive roles including convoy duty and coastal defence amphibious operations hunting u boats and surface raiders mine sweeping and manning landing and rescue craft a particularly graphic section describes in the words of the sailors themselves what action against the enemy felt like and the impact of casualties seamen who were wounded or killed on board or were lost when their ships sank a fascinating inside view of the maritime warfare emerges which may be less heroic than the image created by some post war accounts but it gives readers today a much more realistic impression of the whole gamut of wartime life at sea this volume features the complete text of the material presented at the twentieth annual conference of the cognitive science society as in previous years the symposium included an interesting mixture of papers on many topics from researchers with diverse backgrounds and different goals presenting a multifaceted view of cognitive science this volume contains papers posters and summaries of symposia presented at the leading conference that brings cognitive scientists together to discuss issues of theoretical and applied concern submitted presentations are represented in these proceedings as long papers those presented as spoken presentations and full posters at the conference and short papers those presented as abstract posters by members of the cognitive science society construction equipment management for engineers estimators and construction managers second edition has been extensively rewritten to not only bring it up to date with the state of current practice but also to serve as a textbook for university courses in construction engineering and management the authors advanced the previous edition s practical hands on approach and added material on the future of construction equipment fleet management which they believe will require a new technology based skillset to maximize the cost effectiveness of construction equipment operations as such the book covers the latest construction equipment technologies features examines emergent technologies in the field including automated machine guidance systems intelligent compaction operations and equipment related civil integrated management tools provides information on how to reduce an equipment fleet s environmental impact decreasing greenhouse gas emissions through enhanced equipment management and optimization practices discusses estimating equipment ownership operating costs economic life and optimal replacement timing demonstrates how to maximize profit by determining the optimum equipment mix and estimating productivity illustrates the use of production based linear scheduling and stochastic simulations to maximize project cost and schedule certainty this new edition will serve as an essential textbook for students as well as a valuable reference for a wide range of professionals within the construction architecture and engineering industries
