numerical model developed to simulate the thermal evolution created during a pt or ppt experiment after validation through a .pdf series of case studies this model is then used as a predictive tool to relate defect detectability to the thermal property contrast between defect and bulk materials demonstrating a means of producing realistic kissing defects in bonded joints where insufficient thermal property contrast exists defects have a limited effect on heat propagation through a component and therefore are not detected using pt or ppt this thesis discusses the addition of a small load to bonds containing kissing defects which was found to open the defects sufficiently to enable their detection a low cost infrared detector flir tau320 is compared to the research based photon detector flir sc5000 and is shown to be suitable for application in pt thus enabling a significantly lower cost tool to be developed
