the proceedings of this workshop consideres the prospects for opening up a new window on the universe with the generation of high energy neutrino telescopes now under construction or being planned potential sources of high energy neutrinos such as binary pulsars supernovae and active galactic nuclei are discussed in particular the recent model of stecker and collaborators in which neutrinos with energies as high as 1000 tev are produced in measurable quantities in the cores of quasars and other active galaxies is critically reviewed hidden and devalued feminized labour in the digital humanities examines the data driven labour that underpinned the index thomisticus a preeminent project of the incunabular digital humanities and advanced the data foundations of computing in the humanities through oral history and archival research nyhan reveals a hidden history of the entanglements of gender in the intellectual and technical work of the early digital humanities setting feminized keypunching in its historical contexts from the history of concordance making to the feminization of the office and humanities computing this book delivers new insight into the categories of work deemed meritorious of acknowledgement and attribution and thus how knowledge and expertise was defined in and by this field focalizing the overlooked yet significant data driven labour of lesser known individuals this book challenges exclusionary readings of the history of computing in the humanities contributing to ongoing conversations about the need for alternative genealogies of computing this book is also relevant to current debates about diversity and representation in the academy and the wider computing sector hidden and devalued feminized labour in the digital humanities will be of interest to researchers and students studying digital humanities library and information science the history of computing oral history the history of the humanities and the sociology of knowledge and science journal of frontiers of computer science and technology the morphological scheme devised by hubble and followers to classify galaxies has proven over many decades to be quite effective in directing our quest for the fundamental pa rameters describing the extragalactic manifold this statement is however far more true for spirals than for ellipticals echoing the concluding remarks in scott tremaine s sum mary talk at the princeton meeting on structure and dynamics of elliptical galaxies the hubble classification of spirals is useful because many properties of spirals gas con tent spiral arm morphology bulge prominence etc all correlate with hubble time by contrast almost nothing correlates with the elliptical hubble sequence el to e7 during the last few years much effort has been put into the search for a more meaningful classification of ellipticals than hubble s concomitantly forwarded by some provocative conjectures by r michard the classical question of whether e galaxies form a physically homogeneous family has been brushed up once more results of these and other parallel studies look rather promising and point to suture part of the dichotomy between ellipticals and disk galaxies which had become popular in the early eighties owing to dynamical arguments at the same time it appears more and more clear that besides the usual genetic varieties of galaxies products of environmental evolution must also be contemplated in building our modern picture of the reign of galaxies the above considerations prompted us to solicit prof this book is now used by industry as part of the software and hardware development process in both europe and the usa it is currently undergoing bsi standardisation in the uk and has been proposed for iso standardisation internationally in recent years researchers have begun to focus increasingly on the development of techniques and tools to encourage the wider application of z and other formal methods and notations this volume contains papers from the seventh annual z user meeting held in london in december 1992 in contrast to previous years the meeting concentrated specifically on industrial applications of z and a high proportion of the participants came from an industrial background the theme is well represented by the four invited papers three of these discuss ways in which formal methods are being introduced and the fourth presents an international survey of industrial applications it also provides a reminder of the improvements which are needed to make these methods an accepted part of software development in addition the volume contains several submitted papers on the industrial use of z two of which discuss the key area of safety critical applications there are also a number of papers related to the recently completed zip project the papers cover all the main areas of the project including methods tools and the development of a z standard the first publicly available version of which was made available at the meeting finally the volume contains a select z bibliography and section on how to access information on z through comp specification z the international computer based usenet newsgroup z user workshop london 1992 provides an important overview of current research into industrial applications of z and will provide invaluable reading for researchers postgraduate students and also potential industrial users of z this may be the first and only book to take a hard look at the layout of the woodworker s workshop booklist 301color photos Morphological and Physical Classification of Galaxies 1992-05-31 the morphological scheme devised by hubble and followers to classify galaxies has proven over many decades to be quite effective in directing our quest for the fundamental pa rameters describing the extragalactic manifold this statement is however far more true for spirals than for ellipticals echoing the concluding remarks in scott tremaine s sum mary talk at the princeton meeting on structure and dynamics of elliptical galaxies the hubble classification of spirals is useful because many properties of spirals gas con tent spiral arm morphology bulge prominence etc all correlate with hubble time by contrast almost nothing correlates with the elliptical hubble sequence el to e7 during the last few years much effort has been put into the search for a more meaningful classification of ellipticals than hubble s concomitantly forwarded by some provocative conjectures by r michard the classical question of whether e galaxies form a physically homogeneous family has been brushed up once more results of these and other parallel studies look rather promising and point to suture part of the dichotomy between ellipticals and disk galaxies which had become popular in the early eighties owing to dynamical arguments at the same time it appears more and more clear that besides the usual genetic varieties of galaxies products of environmental evolution must also be contemplated in building our modern picture of the reign of galaxies the above considerations prompted us to solicit prof

New Aspects of Galaxy Photometry 2005-12-01 the z notation has been developed at the programming research group at the oxford university computing laboratory and elsewhere for over a decade it is now used by industry as part of the software and hardware development process in both europe and the usa it is currently undergoing bsi standardisation in the uk and has been proposed for iso standardisation internationally in recent years researchers have begun to focus increasingly on the development of techniques and tools to encourage the wider application of z and other formal methods and notations this volume contains papers from the seventh annual z user meeting held in london in december 1992 in contrast to previous years the meeting concentrated specifically on industrial applications of z and a high proportion of the participants came from an industrial background the theme is well represented by the four invited papers three of these discuss ways in which formal methods are being introduced and the fourth presents an international survey of industrial applications it also provides a reminder of the improvements which are needed to make these methods an accepted part of software development in addition the volume contains several submitted papers on the industrial use of z two of which discuss the key area of safety critical applications there are also a number of papers related to the recently completed zip project the papers cover all the main areas of the project including methods tools and the development of a z standard the first publicly available version of which was made available at the meeting finally the volume contains a select z bibliography and section on how to access information on z through comp specification z the international computer based usenet newsgroup z user workshop london 1992 provides an important overview of current research into industrial applications of z and will provide invaluable reading for researchers postgraduate students and also potential industrial users of z
