Guide to Selecting a Group Tour 1984

boards are remarkably good at corporate governance and yet face the flak for it everybody who has spent any time with boards of directors lives and breathes corporate governance the corporate governance process is designed and run with almost military precision to give effect to the legislative requirements and commercial exigencies with only a few board meetings a year due to the focused attention of some of the best people in the corporate world and significant budgetary allocation the governance of what falls within the four walls of the company itself is done with a remarkable efficiency almost all the time so the natural question is why then such a lot of hoopla in the press about corporate governance where does it fail for the 3ps the press the politicians and the preachers from the ngos to make such a lot of noise about it this question merits a little deeper exploration because almost all failures of corporate governance lie elsewhere after visiting with numerous boards and having spent countless hours past midnight preparing board presentations papers and submissions we have become convinced that lack of corporate governance is not the real culprit in most cases that infamy lies at the behest of supply chain governance

Global Supply Chain Group's Guide to Supply Chain Governance 2017-10-25

have you ever wondered why do most people feel the need for supply chain security only when it is too late if there is a comprehensive supply chain security framework that covers all aspects of supply chain security starting from the threats to risk evaluation to the categorisation of threats to regulations covering supply chain security to allies to elements of supply chain security to impact on the business of security related decisions to technologies to roi and an action plan who are you allies in the supply chain in security which threat cannot be anticipated because it is far too covert what are the technologies that are available for supply chain security but rarely deployed what is the impact of business decisions on supply chain security what are the barriers to supply chain security and how to overcome them why information security is the most important threat it is common knowledge that no one feels the need for supply chain security until it is too late unfortunately by that time it has hurt the company and the careers of people involved if they cannot prove that they took adequate steps to follow the company policy and the exercise of their own good judgement for this reason even if your company as a robust supply chain security policy which you follow diligently you still need to read the full description and table of contents of this report below in order to see if it is useful for you or not
