from its very beginning christian faith has been engaged with religious violence the first christians were persecuted by their co religionists and then by imperial rome jesus taught them in such circumstances not to retaliate but to be peacemakers to love their enemies and to pray for their persecutors jesus s response to religious violence of the first century was often ignored but it was never forgotten even during those centuries when the church herself persecuted christian heretics jews and muslims some christians still struggled to bear witness to the peace mandate of their lord in the thirteenth century thomas aquinas wrote a theology to help his dominican brothers persuade cathar christians to return to their catholic faith peacefully ramon lull a christian student of arabic and the qur an sought to help his fellow christians recognize the elements of belief they shared in common with the muslims in their midst in the fifteenth century nicholas of cusa a church cardinal and theologian expanded lull s project to include the newly discovered religions of asia in the seventeenth century lord herbert an english diplomat and lay christian began to identify the political union of church and government as a causal factor in thereligious warfare of post reformation christendom one and a half centuries later thomas jefferson a lay theologian of considerable political stature won a political struggle in the american colonies to disestablish religion first in his home colony of virginia and then in the new nation he helped to found all five of these theologians reclaimed the peace mandate of jesus in their response to the religious violence of their own eras all of which points us to some intriguing christian responses to religious violence in our own century as recounted in the epilogue recent years have seen a meteoric rise in the power and importance of organized religion in many parts of the world at the same time there has been a significant increase in violence perpetrated in the name of religion while much has been written on the relationship between violence and religious militancy history shows that religious people have also played a critical role in peacemaking within numerous cultures in the new century will religion bring upon further catastrophes or will it provide human civilization with methods of care healing and the creation of peaceful and just societies in this groundbreaking book marc gopin integrates the study of religion with the study of conflict resolution he argues that religion can play a critical role in constructing a global community of shared moral commitments and vision a community that can limit conflict to its nonviolent constructive variety if we examine religious myths and moral traditions gopin argues we can understand why and when religious people come to violence and why and when they become staunch peacemakers he shows that it is the conservative expression of most religious traditions that presents the largest challenge in terms of peace and conflict gopin considers ways to construct traditional paradigms that are committed to peacemaking on a deep level and offers such a paradigm for the case of judaism throughout gopin emphasizes that developing the potential of the world s religions for coping with conflict demands a conscious process on the part of peacemakers and theologians his innovative and carefully argued study also offers a broad set of recommendations for policy planners both inside and outside of government
