De-/Re-Contextualizing Conference Interpreting 2004-08-26 this groundbreaking study explores simultaneous conference interpreting si by focusing on interpreters as professionals working in socio cultural contexts and on the interdependency between these contexts and actual si behavior while previous research on si has been dominated by cognitive and psycholinguistic approaches diriker s work explores si in relation to the broader and more immediate socio cultural contexts by investigating the representation of the professional in the meta discourse and by exploring the presence of interpreters and the nature of the interpreted utterance at an actual conference making use of participant observations interviews and analysis of conference transcripts diriker challenges some of the widely held assumptions about si she suggests that the interpreter s delivery represents not only the speaker but a multiplicity of speaker positions and that this multiplicity may well be a source of tension or vulnerability as well as strength for interpreters her analysis also highlights how interpreters negotiate meaning in si and underscores the need for more concerted efforts to explore si in authentic contexts

Voices of the Invisible Presence 2009-01-14 voices of the invisible presence diplomatic interpreters in post world war ii japan examines the role and the making of interpreters in the social political and economic context of postwar japan using oral history as a method the primary questions addressed are what kind of people became interpreters in post wwii japan how they perceived their role as interpreters and what kind of role they actually played in foreign relations in search of answers to these questions the living memories of five prominent interpreters were collected in the form of life story interviews which were then categorized based on pierre bourdieu s concept of habitus field and practice the experiences of pioneering simultaneous interpreters are analyzed as case studies drawing on erving goffman s participation framework and the notion of kurogo in kabuki theatre leading to the discussion of in visibility of interpreters and their perception of language culture and communication

Mediating Emergencies and Conflicts 2016-07-20 contributors to this volume discuss different types of emergencies and conflicts and how challenging these multilingual operational environments are for linguists the growth in reach and number of international relief operations has exposed the limits of current research into these challenges evidence in disaster management studies suggests communication remains a major operational issue this book calls for enhanced focus on the role of translators and interpreters in emergencies by discussing existing research and questions which have emerged from experience in the field contributions in this volume undeniably demonstrate the need for multidisciplinary studies in mediating multilingual emergencies they consider emergencies in hospitals cox and lázaro Gutiérrez in disaster response dogan in bespoke training to translators in fast developing crises o brien and in planning responses in predictably dangerous habitats razumovskaya bartashova the volume also illustrates scenarios in which discourse on language mediation shows bias by limiting political dialogues al shehari by conditioning news reporting skorokhod and by enforcing stereotypical notions of linguists in wars gaunt

Self-preservation in Simultaneous Interpreting 2009-01-01 the image of the tightrope walker illustrates the interpreter's balancing act compelled to move forward at a pace set by someone else interpreters compensate for pressures and surges that might push them into the void the author starts from the observation that conference interpreters tend to see survival as being their primary objective it is interpreters awareness of the essentially face threatening nature of the profession that naturally induces them to seek what the author calls dynamic equilibrium a constantly evolving state in which problems are resolved in the interests of maintaining the integrity of the system as a whole by taking as a starting point the more visible interventions interpreters make comments on speed of delivery on exchanges between the chair and the floor the author is able to explore the interpreter's instinct for self preservation in an inherently unstable environment this volume is an insightful and refreshing account of interpreters behavior from the other side of the glass fronted booth

Beyond Descriptive Translation Studies 2008-03-13 to go beyond the work of a leading intellectual is rarely an unambiguous tribute however when gideon toury founded descriptive translation studies as a research based discipline he laid down precisely that intellectual challenge not just to describe translation but to explain it through reference to wider relations that call offers at once a common base an open and multidirectional ambition and many good reasons for unambiguous tribute the authors brought together in this volume include key players in translation studies who have responded to toury's challenge in one way or another their diverse contributions address issues such as the sociology of translators contemporary changes in intercultural relations the fundamental problem of defining translations the nature of explanation and case studies including pseudotranslation in renaissance italy sherlock holmes in turkey and the coffee and sugar economy in brazil all acknowledge translation studies as a research based space for conceptual coherence and creativity all seek to explain as well as describe in this sense we believe that toury's call has been answered beyond expectations

Tradition, Tension and Translation in Turkey 2015-07-15 the articles in this volume examine historical cultural literary and political facets of translation in turkey a society in tortuous transformation since the 19th century from empire to nation state some draw attention to tradition in ottoman practices and agents of translation and interpreting while others explore the republican period starting in 1923 with the revolutionary change in script from arabic to roman coming in 1928 making a powerful impact on publication and translation practices areas covered include the german jewish academic involvement in translation traditional and current practices of translating from kurkish into turkish censorship of translated literature intralingual translations from ottoman into modern turkish pseudotranslation ideological manipulation and resistance in translation imitativeness vs originality and metonymics of literary reviewing

Efforts and Models in Interpreting and Translation Research 2009-01-05 this volume covers a wide range of topics in interpreting and translation research some deal with scientometrics and the history of interpreting studies arguments about conceptual analysis meta language and interpreters risk taking strategies other papers are on research skills like career management writing communicative abstracts and the practicalities of survey research several contributions address empirical issues such as expertise in simultaneous interpreting the cognitive load imposed on interpreters by a non native accent the impact of intonation on interpreting quality linguistic interference in simultaneous interpreting similarities between translation and interpreting and the relation between translation competence and revision competence the collection is a tribute to daniel gile in appreciation of his creativity and his commitment to interpreting and translation research all the contributions in some way show his influence or are related to the models and research he has shaped

Interpreting Technologies – Current and Future Trends 2023-10-09 while interpreting long remained unaffected by the technological progress that transformed the translation industry recent years have witnessed a paradigm shift such that interpreters increasingly interact with technological tools that the delivery of interpreting services becomes increasingly dependent on technologies and finally that technologies start to emerge that might some day compete with interpreters this volume brings together a series of contributions on interpreting technologies focusing on each of these aspects its goal is to inform and to empower interpreters as well as to spark new reflections on the future of technology in the interpreting industry with this volume we want to encourage interpreters to participate in that reflection and to become partners of technology rather than its victims the next generation of technologies will need a next generation of interpreters

Modelling the Field of Community Interpreting 2011 the field of community interpreting is characterised by continually changing political social institutional and cultural contexts over the last few years new approaches to the training of community interpreters have been conceptualised to meet the requirements of these developments and to replace lay interpreters by trained interpreters the contributions of this volume present both innovative models of didactics and curricula for community interpreters and empirically and methodologically challenging analyses of various fields of community interpreting

Addressing Methodological Challenges in Interpreting Studies Research 2016-06-22 using interaction as a fundamental springboard addressing methodological challenges in interpreting studies research showcases the major breakthrough in interpreting studies made by investigating community interpreting and the inherent high degree of participant interaction the book adds a reflexive twist and espouses the notion of the analyst as not separate from the context under study after looking at dialogue interpreters cast away from the carpeted walls of sound proof booths and deprived of the spotlighted lectern podium position at high level fora it has become clear that the interpreter s invisibility not to mention their neutrality is uppermost in the minds of both users and providers in terms of expectations among all the participants in any mediated communicative situation it is the interpreter who is exceedingly visible and potentially most influential in shaping and coordinating the ongoing exchanges the book proposes that a similar view be applied to researchers engaged in interpreting research especially in empirical investigations different forms of interaction between researchers and the data in their studies are inevitable this applies to every stage of their work ranging from all the pre analysis activities to the analysis itself and the post analysis stage in which results are disseminated in the research community and possibly the target population this volume will stand to benefit all those who work with researching language issues not only because of the various approaches covered in the volume but also because of the ways in which they are reframed as a result of shifting contextual constraints

American Book Publishing Record 2003 bourdieu s key concepts of habitus field and capital have been adopted or adapted to elaborate the social and cultural nature of translation or interpreting activity to locate this activity within social structures and social institutions and to analyse the cultural historical and political specificity of translation and interpreting practices this special issue of the translator explores the emergence and subsequent development of bourdieu s work within translation and interpreting studies contributors to this volume offer their critical assessment of the force of bourdieu s arguments in clarifying strengthening or challenging existing analyses of the role of the social in translation and interpreting studies the topics include a consideration of the role of habitus and symbolic linguistic capital in translation and interpreting within the legal field a critical evaluation of how educational sign language interpreters serve to reinforce the continuation of exclusionary practices toward deaf pupils within mainstream schooling a critique of the dominant historiography of the early translations of shakespeare s drama in egypt an exploration of bourdieu s concepts of habitus capital and illusio in relation to the formation of the literary field in france and america in the 19th and 20th century a re evaluation of the potential for a theoretical alliance between latour s actor network theory and bourdieu s reflexive sociology and a discussion of the ethnographic epistemological foundations of bourdieu s work with reference to political asylum procedures in belgium from varying perspectives the papers in this volume demonstrate the contribution of bourdieu s work toward the continued elaboration of sociological perspectives within translation and interpreting studies
