though power is commonly seen as a special feature of exceptional personalities van ginkel argues that power is actually a given feature of all humans animals and plants each has different power of a special kind and a special degree all plant animal and human power is sparked and specified by a fusion of varieties of the same four general elements faculty object effect and limit unlike animal power human power rises and falls irregularly both in history and in individual life van ginkel s straight logical analysis asserts that a human individual is at any given moment either a dependent impulse driven agent whose pursuits cause his given power to fall or an independent design driven agent whose operations cause his given power to rise the difference between the two is sometimes slight sometimes dramatic in the near future all human power may be reduced to zero by such man made perils as environment devastation self dementing addictions or mass destructive weapons unless educational and governmental power expand on an unprecedented scale human power is unlimited as long as it expands within a philosophically or theologically defined limit human rights power and civic action examines the interrelationship between struggles for human rights and the dynamics of power focusing on situations of poverty and oppression in developing countries it is argued that the concept of power is a relatively neglected one in the study of rights based approaches to development especially the ways in which structures and relations of power can limit human rights advocacy therefore this book focuses on how local and national struggles for rights have been constrained by power relations and structural inequalities as well as the extent to which civic action has been able to challenge alter or transform such power structures and simultaneously to enhance protection of people s basic human rights contributors examine and compare struggles to advance human rights by non governmental actors in cambodia china ghana kenya south africa and zimbabwe the country case studies analyse structures of power responsible for the negation and denial of human rights as well as how rights promoting organisations challenge such structures utilising a comparative approach the book provides empirically grounded studies leading to new theoretical understanding of the interrelationships between human rights struggles power and poverty reduction human rights power and civic action will be of interest to students and scholars of human rights politics power development and governance

with the emergence of modern human rights in the universal declaration what remained of a radical political potential of the discourse withdrew statism and individualism became its authorised foundations and the possibilities of other human rights traditions were denied the strife that once lay at the heart of human rights was forgotten in an increasing juridification this book seeks to recover the radical political pole of human rights it looks to the debates surrounding constituent power the power of the people in order to understand different possibilities for the discourse using continental political philosophy and critical legal theory human rights and constituent power presents a very different conception of human rights more at home on the riotous streets than in courtrooms and parliaments

Human Rights, Power and Civic Action 2013-07-18

discusses the ability of psychotechnology to control the fragility and pathos of the ego which can create and validate humanity while also rationalizing cruelties and inhumanity the negative animalistic characteristics of man must be subordinated to the positive values of love and empathy without sacrificing creativity or selective capacities it is proposed that a program of direct biochemical intervention be implemented to control negativistic tendencies ultimately world leaders who have the nuclear power to determine the fate of humanity should be given the earliest perfected form of appropriate drugs this requirement would control the barbaric use of power and insure that survival of the human species is not sacrificed to the personal ego pathos of powerful individuals

john gray has become one of our liveliest and most influential political philosophers this current volume is a sequel to his liberalisms essays in political philosophy the earlier book ended on a sceptical note both in respect of what a post liberal political philosophy might look like and with respect to the claims of political philosophy itself john gray s new book gives post liberal theory a more definite content it does so by considering particular thinkers in the history of political thought by criticizing the conventional wisdom liberal and socialist of the western academic class and most directly by specifying what remains of value in liberalism the upshot of this line of thought is that we need not regret the failure of foundationalist liberalism since we have all we need in the historic inheritance of the institutions of civil society it is to the practice of liberty that these institutions encompass rather than to empty liberal theory that we should repair

Sex, Time, and Power 2004-08-03

this accessible and cutting edge work offers a new look at the history of western civilization one that brings into focus the interrelated suffering of oppressed humans and other animals nibert argues persuasively that throughout history the exploitation of other animals has gone hand in hand with the oppression of women people of color and other oppressed groups he maintains that the oppression both of humans and of other species of animals is inextricably tangled within the structure of social arrangements nibert asserts that human use and mistreatment of other animals are not natural and do little to further the human condition nibert s analysis emphasizes the economic and elite driven character of prejudice discrimination and institutionalized repression of humans and other animals his examination of the economic entanglements of the oppression of human and other animals is supplemented with an analysis of ideological forces and the use of state power in this sociological expose of the grotesque uses of the oppressed past and present nibert suggests that the liberation of devalued groups of humans is unlikely in a world that uses other animals as fodder for the continual growth and expansion of transnational corporations and conversely that animal liberation cannot take place when humans continue to be exploited and oppressed

Deciding on the Human Use of Power

the book we need now to avoid a social recession murthy s prescient message is about the importance of human connection the hidden impact of loneliness on our health and the social power of community humans are social creatures in this simple and obvious fact lies both the problem and the solution to the current crisis of loneliness in his groundbreaking book the 19th surgeon general of the united states dr vivek murthy makes a case for loneliness as a public health concern a root cause and contributor to many of the epidemics sweeping the world today from alcohol and drug addiction to violence to depression and anxiety loneliness he argues is affecting not only our health but also how our children experience school how we perform in the workplace and the sense of division and polarization in our society but at the center of our loneliness is our innate desire to connect we have evolved to participate in community to forge lasting bonds with others to help one another and to share life experiences we are simply better together the lessons in together have immediate relevance and application these four key strategies will help us not only to weather this crisis but also to heal our social world far into the future spend time each day with those you love devote at least 15 minutes each day to connecting with those you most care about focus on each other forget about multitasking and give the other person the gift of your full attention making eye contact if possible and genuinely listening embrace solitude the first step toward building stronger connections with others is to build a stronger connection with oneself meditation prayer art music and time spent outdoors can all be sources of solitary comfort and joy help and be helped service is a form of human connection that reminds us of our value and purpose in life checking on a neighbor seeking advice even just offering a smile to a stranger six feet away all can make us stronger during murthy s tenure as surgeon general and during the research for together he found that there were few issues that elicited as much enthusiastic interest from both very conservative and very liberal members of congress from young and old people or from urban and rural residents alike loneliness was something so many people have known themselves or have seen in the people around them in the book murthy also shares his own deeply personal experiences with the subject from struggling with loneliness in school to the devastating loss of his uncle who succumbed to his own loneliness as well as the important example of community and connection that his parents modeled simply it s a universal condition that affects all of us directly or through the people we love now more than ever

When we think about the world, we often think of it as a vast, open space. But in reality, it is a complex, interconnected system. The world is a place of constant change and growth, and we must learn to navigate it in a way that is both effective and ethical. The world is a place of opportunity, but it is also a place of challenge. We must be prepared to face whatever comes our way, and we must be able to adapt to the ever-changing circumstances of life.
