edition has been produced by the world's leading scientists, engineers, analysts, research institutions and companies. All of the content is from peer-reviewed sources and all of it is written, assembled and edited by the editors at ScholarlyEditions and available exclusively from us. You now have a source you can cite with authority, confidence and credibility. More information is available at scholarlyeditions.com. The series builds an extensive collection of high-quality descriptions of languages around the world. Each volume offers a comprehensive grammatical description of a single language together with fully analyzed sample texts and, if appropriate, a word list and other relevant information which is available on the language in question. There are no restrictions as to language family or area and although special attention is paid to hitherto undescribed languages, new and valuable treatments of better-known languages are also included. No theoretical model is imposed on the authors; the only criterion is a high standard of scientific quality. To discuss your book idea or submit a proposal, please contact Birgit Sievert.

Includes South Africa, Rhodesia, Zambia, Malawi, South West Africa, Mocambique, Angola, Swaziland, Botswana and Lesotho.

Behaviour of Steel Structures in Seismic Areas is a comprehensive overview of recent developments in the field of seismic-resistant steel structures. It comprises a collection of papers presented at the seventh international specialty conference, Stessa 2012, Santiago, Chile, 9-11 January 2012, and includes the state of the art in both theory and practice.

This is a literary discussion of one half of Zane Grey's westerns selected to best show the broad scope of this popular author's interests in the West. The text explains how these novels work while pointing out Grey's ecological concern for the natural world. Its vastness, color and beauty, wild nature provides a powerful setting but is a determinant of action and of character too. The range of subjects encompasses not only cowboys but also prospectors, foresters and other frontiersmen from the end of the revolutionary war to the flapper era of the 1920s. World War I veterans, including an American Indian, are portrayed in several books and women are colorful main protagonists in others. All uniquely characterized. Grey's sure ear for dialogue is key to his vivid presentation of the ideals of the Old West.

John Pedder, a shy, ascetic, gentlemanly personality, was appointed first chief justice of Tasmania in 1823. Even he was surprised he had been only three years in practice. Probably his loyalty to the Church of England appealed to the colonial office. The new chief justice was shocked by the cost of living in the convict colony of Van Diemen's Land, the reduced state of society and the harshness of the dominant penal system. He was acutely conscious of the finality of the death penalty and publicly protested the ill treatment of Tasmanian aborigines. In his very first trial, the first held in any Australian supreme court, a white man was convicted of the manslaughter of an aboriginal. Pedder was Sir Guy Green states in his foreword, a competent and enlightened trial judge whose work had a great impact on the everyday life of the colony. He was less successful when confronted by the novel and extremely difficult questions of public law which arose as the rule of law was established and challenged in the small and remote colony. As an executive councillor, he was notorious for diffident and ambivalent opinions. Other criticism that he was a hectoring bully in court, that he ducked and delayed decisions in the civil jurisdiction, is shown to be false. His 30 years on the bench were remarkable for his industry and conscientiousness. A most comprehensive and thorough account of Pedder's life and times which makes a significant contribution to the history of Tasmania and Australia generally.

Sir Guy Green: The Tasmanian State Set of Lives of Australian Chief Justices which includes Sir John Pedder, Sir Valentine Fleming and Sir Francis Villeneuve Smith is available for $130.00. This volume represents an edited selection of papers presented at the international symposium on the geology of tin deposits held in Nanning City in October 1984. It documents a great advance in our knowledge of tin deposits, particularly of the People's Republic of China. Details are presented in English for the first time on the major tin polymetallic sulphide deposits of Dachang and Gejiu which bear similarities to the deposits of Tasmania but are little known to the geological community outside of China.
