understanding neutralization is particularly relevant to an appreciation of the interaction between a virus and its antibody synthesizing host since it is likely that viruses and the antibody system have evolved in response to reciprocally imposed selective pressures neutralization of viruses which only infect non antibody synthesizing hosts while of considerable interest from of points of view is de facto without any such evolutionary signifi a number cance in this second category are viruses of plants invertebrates vertebrates below fish in the evolutionary scale which do not synthesize antibody and most bacteria viruses of organisms parasitic on or commensal with antibody synthesizing vertebrates such as enteric bacteria protozoa or metazoan parasites will be in contac with antibody at some stage of their existence and arthropod borne viruses which have a higher vertebrate as second host are obviously bona fide members of the first category there is an urgent need to understand the principles by which antibodies inactivate virus infectivity since at present we are unable to rationally construct effective vaccines against new agents like the human immuno deficiency viruses or to improve existing vaccines the intention of this volume is to comprehensively review neutralization and where possible to construct a unifying theory which can be tested by experimentation my lifetime encompasses the postwar subsidence in the early 1920s of the greatest influenza pandemic in history direct encounters with fm1 virus at fort mon mouth in 1947 the care of influenza patients in the 1950s the pursuit of the influenza virus through the modern pandemics of 1957 and 1968 and a present in which the genes of the virus have dissembled in the dna of vaccinia virus and escherichia coli through the wand of high tech if my corpus could be fossilized for archival and archaeological purposes it would be found to contain immune cells branded with the imprint of the swine influenza virus of post 1918 and brain cells no less imprinted with memories of the abortive return of its descendant during america s bicentennial but before that unlikely event i wanted to try to make some sense out of this baffling disease and its viruses expecting no definitive revelations but hoping for a sharper definition of problems hence this book it is an audacious act in these days of specialization to essay a book such as this singlehandedly but i have done so for selfish reasons i wanted to reexamine old questions about the nature of influenza and its epidemics in the light of the dazzling advances in molecular biology of the past few years no virus has been better studied but few diseases are less well understood the most misunderstood force driving health and disease the story of the invention and use of electricity has often been told before but never from an environmental point of view the assumption of safety and the conviction that electricity has nothing to do with life are by now so entrenched in the human psyche that new research and testimony by those who are being injured are not enough to change the course that society has set two increasingly isolated worlds that inhabited by the majority who embrace new electrical technology without question and that inhabited by a growing minority who are fighting for survival in an electrically polluted environment no longer even speak the same language in the invisible rainbow arthur firstenberg bridges the two worlds in a story that is rigorously scientific yet easy to read he provides a surprising answer to the question how can electricity be suddenly harmful today when it was safe for centuries the paper begins with a retrospective of the debates on the origin of life the virus or the cell the virus needs a cell for replication instead the cell is a more evolved form on the evolutionary scale of life in addition the study of viruses raises pressing conceptual and philosophical questions about their nature their classification and their place in the biological world the subject of pandemics is approached starting from the existentialism of albert camus and sartre the replacement of the exclusion ritual with the disciplinary mechanism of michel foucault and about the gaia hypothesis developed by james lovelock and supported in the current pandemic by bruno latour the social dimensions of pandemics their connection to global warming which has led to an increase in infectious diseases and the deforestation of large areas which have caused viruses to migrate from their native area their reservoir are highlighted below the ethics of pandemics is approached from several philosophical points of view of which the most important in a crisis of such global dimensions is utilitarianism which involves maximizing benefits for society in direct conflict with the usual kantian view of respect for people as individuals after a retrospective of the covid 19 virus that caused the current pandemic its life cycle and its history with an emphasis on the philosophy of death the concept of biopower initially developed by foucault is discussed with reference to the practice of modern states of control of the populations and the debate generated by giorgio agamben who states that what is manifested in this pandemic is the growing tendency to use the state of emergency as a normal paradigm of government an interesting and much debated approach is the one generated by the works of slavoj žižek who states that the current pandemic has led to the bankruptcy of the current barbaric capitalism wondering if the path that humanity will take is a neo communism another important negative effect is desocialization with the conclusion of some philosophers that we cannot exist independently of our relationships with others that a person s humanity depends on the humanity of those around him the last section is dedicated to forecasting what the world will look like after the pandemic and there are already signs of a paradigm shift including the covid disappearance of the wall ideology a cough was enough to make it suddenly impossible to avoid the responsibility that every individual has it towards all living beings for the simple fact that he is part of this world and of the desire to be part of it the whole is always involved in part because everything is in a sense in everything and in nature there are no autonomous regions that are an exception the covid 19 pandemic seems to restore the supremacy that once belonged to politics one of the virtues of the virus is its ability to generate a more sober idea of freedom to be free means to do what needs to be done in a specific situation contents abstract introduction 1 viruses 1 1 ontology 2 pandemics 2 1 social dimensions 2 2 ethics 3 covid 19 3 1 biopolitics 3 2 neocommunist 3 3 desocialising 4 forecasting bibliography doi 10 13140 rg 2 2 31039 74405 1
