Diaspora and Identity

2017-12-15

são paulo brazil holds the largest number of japanese descendants outside japan and they have been there for six generations japanese immigration to brazil started in 1908 to replace european immigrants to work in são paulo s expanding coffee industry it peaked in the late 1920s and early 1930s as anti japanese sentiment grew in brazil approximately 189,000 japanese entered brazil by 1942 in mandatory family units after the war prewar immigrants and their descendants became quickly concentrated in são paulo city immigration from japan resumed in 1952 and by 1993 some 54 000 immigrants arrived in brazil by 1980 the majority of japanese brazilians had joined the urban middle class and many had been mixed racially in the mid 1980s japanese brazilians return labor migrations to japan began on a large scale more than 310 000 brazilian citizens were residing in japan in june 2008 when the centenary of japanese immigration was widely celebrated in brazil the story does not end there the global recession that started in 2008 soon forced unemployed brazilians in japan and their japanese born children to return to brazil based on her research in brazil and japan mieko nishida challenges the essentialized categories of the japanese in brazil and brazilians in japan with special emphasis on gender nishida deftly argues that japanese brazilian identity has never been a static fixed set of traits that can be counted and inventoried rather it is about being and becoming a process of identity in motion responding to the push and pull between being positioned and positioning in a historically changing world she examines japanese immigrants and their descendants historically shifting sense of identity which comes from their experiences of historical changes in socioeconomic and political structure in both brazil and japan each chapter illustrates how their identity is perpetually in formation across generation across gender across class across race and in the movement of people between nations diaspora and identity makes an important contribution to the understanding of the historical development of ethnic racial and national identities as well as construction of the japanese diaspora in brazil and its response to time place and circumstances

Street Art and Democracy in Latin America

this book explores street art s contributions to democracy in latin america through a comparative study of five cities bogota colombia são paulo brazil valparaiso chile oaxaca mexico and havana cuba the author argues that when artists invade public space for the sake of disseminating rage claims or statements they behave as urban citizens who try to raise public awareness nurture public debates and hold authorities accountable street art also reveals how public space is governed when local authorities try to contain regulate or repress public space invasions they can achieve their goals democratically if they dialogue with the artists and try to reach a consensus inspired by a conception of the city as a commons under specific conditions the book argues street level democracy and collaborative governance can overlap prompting a democratization of democracy global biennials have proliferated in the contemporary art world but artists engagement with large scale international exhibitions has a much longer history that has influenced the present in important ways going back to the earliest world s fairs in the nineteenth century this book argues that globalism was incubated in a century of international art contests and today constitutes an important tactic for artists as world s fairs brought millions of attendees into contact with foreign cultures products and processes artworks became juxtaposed in a theater of nations which challenged artists and critics to think outside their local academies from gustave courbet s rebel pavilion near the official art exhibit at the 1855 french world s fair to curator beryl madra s choice of london based cypriot hussein chalayan for the off site turkish pavilion at the 2006 venice biennale artists have used these exhibitions to reflect on contemporary art speak to their own governments back home and challenge the wider geopolitical realm changing art and art history along the way ultimately caroline a jones argues the modern appetite for experience and event structures which were cultivated around the art at these earlier expositions have now come to constitute
