in looking at the history of collecting one may be excused for regarding it as an activity in which traditionally women have shown little interest or in which they have not been involved as the present volume shows women particularly aristocratic women not only resisted this discrimination through the ages but also built important collections and used them to their own advantage in order to make statements about their lineage power cultural heritage or religious preferences that is not to say that there was not an increasing number of middle class women who became draughtswomen painters and natural scientists and who found it equally beneficial for their chosen profession to collect in every case the female collector chose to collect and what to collect she chose how and where to present the collection and she also decided when to dispose of objects thereby occasionally taking on a curatorial role women have been seen as gatherers of furnishings jewellery dress and objects of domestic life this third volume in the collecting display series of conference proceedings challenges such perceptions through the detailed analysis of different types of collecting by women from the early modern period onwards it thus seeks to give a voice to a group of important female collectors from the sixteenth to the early nineteenth century whose importance for the history of collecting has not yet or not sufficiently been acknowledged itself delivered on that promise these truths tells this uniquely american story beginning in 1492 asking whether the course of events over more than five centuries has proven the nation s truths or belied them to answer that question lepore wrestles with the state of american politics the legacy of slavery the persistence of inequality and the nature of technological change a nation born in contradiction will fight forever over the meaning of its history lepore writes but engaging in that struggle by studying the past is part of the work of citizenship with these truths lepore has produced a book that will shape our view of american history for decades to come

this intriguing book applies critical discourse analysis to a range of south asian women s lifestyle magazines exposing the disconnection between the magazines representations of south asian women and the lived realities of the target audience the author challenges the notion that discourses of freedom and choice employed by women s magazines are emancipatory demonstrating instead that the version of feminism on offer is a commodified form which accords with the commercial aims of the publications mcloughlin demonstrates that whilst british magazines present women in the east as the exotic and culturally superior other women in india are encouraged to emulate western women to signify their engagement with globalization and modernity she uses data from focus groups carried out in both countries to illustrate the interpretive frameworks and multivocality of participants attitudes experiences and beliefs this
