english people in that time a lot of foreign words mostly latin ones made their way into standard english which at first caused no debate but then was criticised by language purists according to them english was in danger of being taken over by foreign languages and needed special support this idea was the beginning of english english dictionaries in 1604 robert cawdry brought out his table alphabetical about three thousand hard words which had become common in english were listed and explained henry cockerham produced the first work with the title the english dictionary in 1623 like other dictionaries of that time it primarily dealt with difficult english words a polyglot dictionary of eleven languages was published in 1617 by john minsheu the ductor in linguas was the most monumental dictionary in the 17th century and for the first time etymology was given some attention in 1674 john ray produced a dictionary which dealt with dialect words it was an unexpected success and people all over the country began looking for additional local terms and sent them to ray who brought out a second and enlarged edition of this dictionary in 1691 john ray can be regarded as the remote originator of the english dialect society mathews 1966 p 26 until then dictionaries followed the line of old glossaries and only dealt with terms which were not common or rather unusual in the english language this changed in the 18th century when the first attempts to publish dictionaries containing all english words were made in 1702 john kersey published a new english dictionary or a complete collection of the most proper and significant words commonly used in the language the new oxford dictionary of english is a landmark in dictionary making the dictionary focuses on english as it is currently used today
