the aim of this book is to conduct a critical survey of the main tools devised for the synthetic measurement of globalization processes to this end the first part of the book discusses the meaning of the concept considered highlighting the different and often contradictory interpretations put forward in its regard in the literature subsequently analysed are the passages and issues that must be addressed when constructing an instrument intended to measure a social phenomenon of such complexity as globalization stressed in particular is that the researcher's subjectivity is repeatedly involved in these passages so that no instrument can have objective validity given these premises the book presents the principal tools employed in attempts to measure globalization starting with those whose unit of analysis is the state in this regard particular space is devoted to indexes which take a multidimensional approach to the concept of globalization there follows a comparison among the results obtained using these indexes and criticisms are made of the ways in which the latter have been constructed a limitation or if one wishes a paradox concerning such tools is that they measure in relation to states a process which has as one of its principal features the fact that it extends beyond the confines of states for this reason the final chapter considers whether globalization can be measured with different units of analysis in particular people and cities the book concludes with discussion of the general limitations of globalization indexes

this book is very useful for it is not just descriptive in its nature but prescriptive too it is descriptive in the sense that it describes the process of developing or using a metric in a problem situation and prescriptive as it clearly prescribes how a beginner can put the theory into practice in this globalized economy maintaining quality of products and services has been the thrust area of interest among academicians and practitioners today there are quite a good number of books and research articles available nevertheless service quality measurement has always posed problems particularly in the context of service industries due to the difficulty in the measurement of the intangibles and implied needs of the customers the research literature is filled with articles on how to quantify the services and there are several streams of arguments on the choice of the most ideal approach however the research gap lies in the answer to the question do these measurement instruments concur in their measurement outcomes or do they give different results in the same situation this book primarily makes an attempt to answer this question through a case study approach even though there are several instruments for the measurement of service quality the two most widely used instruments are servqual and servperf metrics comprehensively this book explains the systematic procedure of using both the instruments in a service sector and further the procedure for conducting a statistical analysis so that one will be able to apply the same in any service sector it then takes the reader through a series of tests in order to compare the two metrics and to prove statistically if there is the same outcome in a problem situation the results are sure to surprise the reader and trigger the research bent of mind to undertake a similar study of such metrics and gain mastery over performing an independent research with very minimal guidance from a professional gu
