~~one of the reasons why so little has been done towards a~~ study of comparative art this difficulty is voiced by mr balch comparative art is the study of the relations of the arts of the world and can be advanced only by trained art critics who are also ethnologists but it is rare to find the subjective and the objective viewpoints combined in one individual mr balch himself does not escape the dominance of the esthetic influence his analysis is essentially the subjective one of the art critic but and here is the interest of his work to the student of the science of man he does recognize the scope of an objective inquiry in the chapters on the distribution of art on local and intrusive arts and on art and man he suggests lines along which it must proceed the first of these chapters classifies the world s art ancient and modern primitive and highly developed the connotation is the fine arts in the broadest sense into art families according to the lines of their development briefly examining their characteristics and distribution the question of local and intrusive art is a phase of the great problem of the spread of culture itself of fundamental significance to the origin and evolution of man we need for instance studies of the fine arts along similar lines to the studies of cultural migrations by the elliot smith school in the case of the fine arts however the difficulty of distinguishing the two factors that haddon terms the solidarity of the human race and ethnic idiosyncrasy will be peculiarly great for art is an exceedingly ancient and universal attribute of man geographical review volume 7
