

considers a wide range of experiences and expectations of age in the period and demonstrates that the central concern of ageing individuals was to continue to live as independently as possible into their last days ageing men and women stayed closely connected to their families and communities in relationships characterized by mutual support and reciprocal obligations despite these aspects of continuity however older individuals ability to maintain their autonomy and the nature of the support available to them once they did fall into necessity declined significantly in the last decades of the century as a result old age was increasingly marginalized historical demographers historical gerontologists sociologists social historians and women s historians will find this book essential
