this book traces the development of china s banking system through the first 25 years of china s socialist market economy up to the present it examines how china s leaders have chosen their own path for reforming and regulating the banking sector and shows how this approach has differed significantly from the neoliberal approach promoted by the west the book demonstrates the effectiveness of the chinese approach contrasting china s relative success in weathering the asian financial crisis with the huge disruption experienced by other east and southeast asian nations which had followed the neoliberal model much more closely the book explains how china s officials were able to resist the persistent efforts of foreign financial institutions to gain control of china s financial sector particularly around the time of china s entry to the world trade organization it argues that china s increasing influence in international financial institutions after the global financial crisis can help mitigate the risk of future financial crises and promote global financial stability innovation and cross border absorption of knowledge are central forces behind economic convergence and sustained growth absorption of technology is considered a necessary step to promote the development of human capital and the productive base paving the way for innovations at the global knowledge frontier research and development patents trade and foreign direct investment are major channels of technological absorption allowing diffusion of new ideas and manufacturing best practices among countries and firms these channels constitute the central focus of this study this study uses patent databases surveys of enterprises and case studies to investigate how the presence of specific channels of absorption molds decision making about technology trade and fdi flows show considerable promise as catalysts for the region to upgrade its technology and near the global technology frontier econometric analysis using enterprise surveys from all europe and central asia countries helps us understand the conditions and policies that induce firms to incorporate external knowledge and technology into their overall growth strategies we find evidence of learning by exporting underscoring the importance of trade as a driver of absorption a case study of several manufacturing firms in serbia complements this perspective providing a detailed picture of the positive dynamics that are produced by fdi particularly in terms of investment and risk taking incentives that are critical for technology absorption examination of patent citations shows that cross border knowledge flows remain weak consequently science and innovation policies should foster greater integration of the region s substantial science and engineering resources with those of the rest of the world these policies should encourage international collaboration and closer connection between the region s public sector r d and global private sector efforts modern tax administrations seek to optimize tax collections while minimizing administration costs and taxpayer compliance costs experience shows that voluntary compliance is best achieved through a system of self assessment many tax administrations have introduced self assessment principles in the income tax law but the legal authority is not being consistently applied they continue to rely heavily on desk auditing a majority of tax returns while risk management practices remain largely underdeveloped and or underutilized there is also plenty of opportunity in many countries to enhance the design and delivery of client focused taxpayer service programs and better engage with the private sector and other stakeholders
