This book belongs in every horse person's library but best kept within close reach as it is a book to be referred back to often. Lisa Ross Williams, publisher, editor in chief, Natural Horse Magazine and author of the award-winning book Down to Earth: Natural Horse Care. I believe that things would immediately improve for every horse on this planet if we could effect one simple little change, one tiny little shift in perspective. Dutch Henry believes this as well and that is why I so strongly recommend his latest book, It's for the Horses, because if we could convince every horse owner on the planet to make every decision about their horses from the perspective of the horse, then everything would change immediately: relationship, training, and the health and happiness of the horse. Kathleen and I have proven it. Dutch Henry has proven it and everything he has written in It's for the Horses will lift you closer and closer to those goals and closer and closer to your horses. Read it, you will not regret it, nor will your horses. excerpt from every man his own farrier containing the causes symptoms and most approved methods of cure of the diseases of horses and dogs the head the head of the horse should not be too large for that usually makes the saddle horse heavy on the hand a head small in proportion to the size of the horse is a fair proof that he has some eastern blood in him and is not devoid of spirit occasionally the horse with a small head is vicious and the shape therefore is of equal importance with the size of the part a head being of a fair proportion to the general make and the bulk consisting in breadth of forehead rather than length of face the eye likewise being a little prominent and lively these peculiarities will in most cases indicate the manageable and serviceable horse the breadth of the forehead and the shortness of the face should be particularly regarded and sought after for general and light yet lasting work but the narrow forehead and long face may do well in the quiet strong horse of heavy work for common purposes a horse with a sinking or hollow across the nose a little below the eyes should seldom be chosen it too often tells of ill temper especially if joined with a more than usual display of the white of the eye the line of the face should be nearly straight yet a little prominence will generally characterize the good tempered good feeding strong lasting manageable but not very light or speedy horse about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works i learned quite early in my career that being successful in the magnificent sphere of international showjumping is a passport to the world should one succeed in this difficult and technical sport they shall inevitably meet vips royalty dignitaries celebrities movie stars and the enormously wealthy national and international doors open when one shines in this world being successful in the sphere of showjumping enabled me to travel to places which i never would have had the opportunity to see otherwise with endless thanks to the horses i have traveled across this country from coast to coast i have also traveled across europe germany holland switzerland great britain ireland france poland russia new zealand mexico puerto rico and bermuda to succeed in the showjumping world one needs to be partnered with a special horse or perhaps several horses in a string of talent the partnership between horse and rider needs to be a unique bond with every horse that one rides each horse is an individual a rider and true horse person must be able to feel and study the horse s personality thus adapting their style and training techniques to each individual horse i find the process of becoming a friend and partner to each horse absolutely fascinating i think the great william steinkraus our united states equestrian team captain and olympic champion for many years said it beautifully when he said the following taking things for granted is all too easy but we must never forget every time we sit on a horse what an extraordinary privilege it is to be able to unite one s body with that of another sentient being one that is stronger faster and more agile by far than we are and at the same time brave generous and uncommonly forgiving epilogue of reflections on riding and jumping by william steinkraus my story is about the understanding of horses and life this includes all of the national and international ventures along the way when a rider is able to get on a vast variety of different horses and understand them relate to them with empathy compassion and sympathy and guide the horse to perform willingly to the best of their ability one becomes a horse whisperer it is not the horse s responsibility to understand us it s our responsibility to understand the horse this book is a compilation of my life stories in the vast international world of showjumping it involves understanding many different horses several of which began as extremely difficult horses or rejects from other horsemen in the racing sphere or the world of show horses over and over what may have been an extremely difficult or misunderstood horse became my friend and my competition partner on the highest level many of these horses became nationally and internationally famous a few of them became hall of fame horses my hope is that this book shall inspire many other horsemen and horsewomen to view each horse as an individual put aside other people s comments or opinions on a horse which may be misunderstood find a bond with that horse with understanding compassion empathy and correct training techniques the greatly misunderstood and unwanted horse could become a champion every horse can have a career doing something as there are so many different disciplines and jobs within the horse industry not every horse will make a top showjumper they must have the innate talent scope quality courage personality and heart for showjumping there are horses who have these wonderful traits but have been rejected because they were misunderstood or because they presented as difficult this is a book of stories about some of those misunderstood and rejected horses and how they accomplished great things once they were finally understood this is a book about how i became a horse whisperer welcome to the world of showjumping and the american show hunter this is an insight into a training system respected worldwide as the american way in this book i bring the reader through the very basics of riding and training a young horse and up through the eventual showmanship necessary within the competitive horse show arena no book is able to replace the day to day attention of a knowledgeable and experienced trainer however i believe this book shall greatly enhance the education of the inquisitive horse person and add new insights into the development of a fine show horse and a successful rider all good training is a result of conveying a concept to a horse in successive degrees of complexity and rewarding each positive step profusely a horse which is happy and enjoys his job will eventually be competing successfully within his compatible and respective division the horse which is resentful of the rider and his job will eventually prove to be disappointing the key to successful training is to present each training step decisively and compassionately accompanied by generous praise and positive reinforcement at any sign of a positive response from the horse proper training technique and skill aside i believe positive reinforcement to be the most significant and imperative step in the successful training of any animal the number one rule in training is the horse always comes first horses are extremely generous animals indeed the progression of mankind through the ages has been built on the backs and through the labor of many kind hearted horses those of us in the horse business owe the horses everything and should treat each horse with the respect and compassion one would desire for themselves the golden rule with young and inexperienced horses less is more by moving slowly and patiently in the beginning of a horse's career and building a solid foundation one avoids time consuming setbacks the rider and trainer are then able to move relatively quickly through a successful training program if done properly training the horse shall be fun and rewarding for both the horse and the rider enjoy jessamy rouson
