if you ask me to describe in one word as to what leaves the maximum impact on an interviewer i would say that it is your personality as lot of positions have functions which the employer can teach you but personality is something they can t teach you and let me tell you that it is your personality itself which creates a negative or positive impression on the interviewer now i am sure that you ll agree to me that it takes a tremendous effort over several years to build up your personality depending upon your upbringing the school you went to the quality of education imparted the subjects studied by you the life lessons taught to you by your elders your personal habits the books you read your friends mentality your approach towards life and many more factors therefore personality is a much more holistic term which forms through a vast bunch of things done all through your life thus you may carry the notion that personality cannot be imparted to someone well i would argue no my belief stands at a distance than yours what if i say that it can be trained to anyone through the source of a book sounds astonishing isn t it that s the beauty of this book as it tells you that by simply following some basic set of rules you can construct an appropriate tone form a pleasing personality and therefore give an impression of having decent etiquettes to your interviewer and let me tell you that personality goes a long way hence i firmly believe that this book has the power to get you your dream job and transform your future this book takes a radical approach to the problems of market economies it doesn't question the role of market mechanisms themselves or the role of government in regulating the economy and providing public goods it does however question one of the foundations on which market based economies are based the system of property rights it suggests that the form of private property that works well for the things we make is entirely inappropriate when applied to the natural world it proposes an alternative stewardship the underlying principle of stewardship is that everyone is entitled to an equal share of the wealth of the natural world in practical terms this means that stewards of land pay a fee that is equal to its market rent this is used to provide revenue for the government in place of conventional taxes or to provide a universal income that is distributed to everybody
