worked as a practitioner in global development for several years then left the practice to ponder the deep ethical issues that shadow global development. Anna Malavisi argues that one of the problems in global development today is the absence of an ethical analysis. Ethics in development today is overshadowed by economic and political interests as well as national self-interest. The book describes how Chagas diseases as a neglected tropical disease continues to plague vulnerable populations in poorer countries such as Bolivia due to a very limited way in how it has been conceived, understood, and addressed. Malavisi offers a strong ethical approach comprising a feminist methodology, a social ethical praxis, political responsibility, epistemic justice, and deep green theory. A strong ethical approach is necessary to address Chagas disease as well as other development problems in a more effective way.

The Politics of Fear 2017-01-05

The 2014-2015 Ebola epidemic in West Africa was an unprecedented medical and political emergency that cast an unflattering light on multiple corners of government and international response. Fear, not rational planning, appeared to drive many decisions made at population and leadership levels, which in turn brought about a response that was as uneven as it was unprecedented. Entire populations were decimated or destroyed, vaccine trials were fast-tracked, health staff died, untested medications were used or not used in controversial ways, humanitarian workers returned home to enforced isolation, and military was employed to sometimes disturbing ends. The epidemic revealed serious fault lines at all levels of theory and practice of global public health. National governments were shown to be helpless and unprepared for calamity at this scale. The World Health Organization was roundly condemned for its ineffectiveness. The US quietly created its own African CDC a year after the epidemic began. Amid such chaos, Médecins Sans Frontières was forced to act with unprecedented autonomy and amid great criticism in responding to the disease, taking unprecedented steps in deploying services and advocating for international aid. The Politics of Fear provides a primary documentary resource for recounting and learning from the Ebola epidemic, comprising eleven topic-based chapters and four eyewitness vignettes from both MSF and non-MSF affiliated contributors, all of whom have been given access to MSF Ebola archives from Guinea, Sierra Leone, and Liberia. For research, it aims to provide a politically agnostic account of the defining health event of the 21st century so far, one that will hopefully inform current opinions and future responses.
