the recent dedication of the world war ii memorial and the sixtieth anniversary commemoration of d day remind us of the hold that world war ii still has over america s sense of itself but the selective process of memory has radically shaped our picture of the conflict why else for instance was a 1995 smithsonian exhibition on hiroshima that was to include photographs of the first atomic bomb victims along with their testimonials considered so controversial and why do we so readily remember the civilian bombings of britain but not those of dresden hamburg and tokyo marianna torgovnick argues that we have lived since the end of world war ii under the power of a war complex a set of repressed ideas and impulses that stems from our unresolved attitudes toward the technological acceleration of mass death this complex has led to gaps and hesitations in public discourse about atrocities committed during the war itself and it remains an enduring wartime consciousness one most recently animated on september 11 showing how different events from world war ii became prominent in american cultural memory while others went forgotten or remain hidden in plain sight the war complex moves deftly from war films and historical works to television specials and popular magazines to define the image and influence of world war ii in our time torgovnick also explores the 1961 trial of adolf eichmann the emotional legacy of the holocaust and the treatment of world war ii s missing history by writers such as w g sebald to reveal the unease we feel at our dependence on those who hold the power of total war thinking anew then about how we account for war to each other and ourselves torgovnick ultimately and movingly shows how these anxieties and fears have prepared us to think about september 11 and our current war in iraq selected as a book of the year by the new york times times literary supplement and the times despite his status as the most despised political figure in history there have only been four serious biographies of hitler since the 1930s even more surprisingly his biographers have been more interested in his rise to power and his methods of leadership than in hitler the person some have even declared that the führer had no private life yet to render hitler as a political animal with no personality to speak of as a man of limited intelligence and poor social skills fails to explain the spell that he cast not only on those close to him but on the german people as a whole in the first volume of this monumental biography volker ullrich sets out to correct our perception of the führer while charting in detail hitler s life from his childhood to the eve of the second world war against the politics of the times ullrich unveils the man behind the public persona his charming and repulsive traits his talents and weaknesses his deep seated insecurities and murderous passions drawing on a wealth of previously neglected or unavailable sources this magisterial study provides the most rounded portrait of hitler to date ullrich renders the führer not as a psychopath but as a master of seduction and guile and it is perhaps the complexity of his character that explains his enigmatic grip on the german people more convincingly than the clichéd image of the monster this definitive biography will forever change the way we look at the man who took the world into the abyss a generally acknowledged characteristic of modern life namely the temporalization of experience inextricable from our intensified experience of contingency and difference has until now remained largely outside psychology s purview wherever questions about the development structure and function of the concept of time have been posed for example by piaget and other founders of genetic structuralism they have been concerned predominantly with concepts of physical chronometrical time and related concepts e g velocity all the contributions to the present volume attempt to close this gap a larger number are especially interested in the narration of stories overviews of the relevant literature as well as empirical case studies appear alongside theoretical and methodological reflections most contributions refer to specifically historical phenomena and meaning constructions some touch on the subjects of biographical memory and biographical constructions of reality of all the various affinities between the contributions collected here the most important is their consistent attention to issues of the constitution and representation of temporal experience
