the story of the raped and murdered woman of judges 19 and the civil war and mass marriage that ensue in chapters 20 21 are hardly favorite tales of the hebrew bible the chapters have often been dismissed as little more than an anachronistic epilogue an awkward amalgamation of earlier stories or a text of terror proof of patriarchal oppression this book argues that far from being a clumsy collage judges 19 21 is a carefully narrated tale that chronicles the descent of a nation into extreme individualism and fragmentation in dialogue with continental philosopher luce irigaray it will uncover the dynamics of identity formation and how differential constructions of identity of the one and the other yield patterns of victimization and justification of violence this literary philosophical reading will bring out silences and missed possibilities for the subjectivity of women whilst also shedding light on the victimization of men within the logic of totalitarian identity constructions the end of judges therefore offers a theological conclusion to the book as a whole and opens up avenues for thought on theological anthropology understandings of identity and gender and a theological commentary on violence roughly 1.7 million people died in Cambodia from untreated disease, starvation, and execution during the Khmer Rouge reign of less than four years in the late 1970s. The regime's brutality has come to be symbolized by the multitude of black and white mugshots of prisoners taken at the notorious Tuol Sleng prison, where thousands of enemies of the state were tortured before being sent to the killing fields. In Archiving the Unspeakable, Michelle Caswell traces the social life of these photographic records through the lens of archival studies and elucidates how paradoxically they have become agents of silence and witnesses to human rights and injustice as they are deployed at various moments in time and space. From their creation as Khmer Rouge administrative records to their transformation beginning in 1979 into museum displays, archival collections, and databases, the mugshots are key components in an ongoing drama of unimaginable human suffering. Winner of the Waldo Gifford Leland Award, Society of American Archivists Longlist, ICA Book Prize, International Convention of Asia Scholars.

Guardians of the Galaxy meets The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy in this wild, warm-hearted, and hilarious sci-fi companion to a problematic paradox. Nikola Kross has battled aliens and won, but her father, who was kidnapped by evil extraterrestrials, is still missing, and now it's up to Nikola and her friends to find and rescue him before it's too late. He could be anywhere in the known universe, and they have little to go on except a desperate secret communication: "Kindly rescue me at your earliest convenience and an unhelpful clue that he's in a secure facility somewhere deep underground, but the extraterrestrials are still determined to capture Nikola, and if she gets abducted, she won't have to wonder where her father is because she'll already be there." In this funny and exciting sequel, Nikola and her friends discover new and unexpected allies and come face-to-face with a strange and mysterious enemy, one so powerful and so dangerous they dare not speak his name.

this collection of his prose writings reveals the extent to which thomas merton moved from the other worldly devotion of his earlier work to a direct deeply engaged often militant concern with the critical situation of man in the world here this concern finds expression in poetic irony and in meditations intentionally dour in these brief challenging pieces father merton does not offer consolation or easy remedies he looks candidly and without illusions at the world of his time though he sees dark horizons his ultimate answer is one of christian hope to vary the perspective he writes in many forms using parable and myth the essay and the meditation satire and manifesto prose poetry and even adaptations from a medieval arab mystic ibn abbad to humanize and dramatic his philosophical themes the themes of raids on the unspeakable are as old as the myths of prometheus and atlas and as timely as the human evils of today they range from the message written for an international congress of poets to the beautiful yet disturbing christmas meditation the time of the end is the time of no room and there are essays inspired by the world of three significant contemporary writers flannery o connor the french novelist julien green and the playwright eugene ionesco a number of father merton s own drawings are also included in the book not as illustrations but as signatures or abstract writings which stand in their own right as another personal statement
