Lloyd Gartner presents in chronologically arranged chapters the story of the changing fortunes of the Jewish communities of the Old World in Europe and the Middle East and beyond and their gradual expansion into the New World of the Americas. The book starts in 1650 when there were no more than one and a quarter million Jews in the world, less than a sixth of the number at the start of the Christian era. Gartner leads us through the traditions, religious laws, communities, and their interactions with their neighbours through the Enlightenment, the French Revolution, and into emancipation, the dark shadows of anti-Semitism, the impact of World War II, bringing us up to the twentieth century through Zionism and the foundation of Israel. Throughout the story is powerful and engrossing, enlivened by curious detail and vivid insights. Gartner, an expert guide and scholar on the subject, writing from within the Jewish community, remains objective and effective whilst being careful to introduce and explain Jewish terminology and Jewish institutions as they appear in the text. This is a superb introductory account, authoritative in control, lively of the central threads in one of the greatest historical tapestries of modern times. It covers events, personalities, and ideas of the past six decades since the end of the First World War. This account begins with the end of World War I and moves on to the destruction of the traditional European order, the triumph of Einstein's new cosmology, the full impact of Freudianism, the establishment of the first Marxist state, and the genesis of Fascism. Students study the social, cultural, and technological changes that occurred in Europe, Africa, and Asia in the years AD 500-1789. This opening volume of a three-part history of the family in Europe examines the material conditions of family life: housing, diet, and domestic organisation, and the economic and social factors that influenced its development. Modern Times is about the emergence of new cultural forms and the experience of modernity over the last hundred years. All the contributions emphasise the instability of modern existence and the complex influence of psychic formation. This is a curated and comprehensive collection of the most important works covering matters related to national security, diplomacy, defense, war strategy, and tactics. The collection spans centuries of thought and experience and includes the latest analysis of international threats, both conventional and asymmetric. It also includes riveting first-person accounts of historic battles and wars. Some of the books in this series are reproductions of historical works preserved by some of the leading libraries in the world. As with any reproduction of a historical artifact, some of these books contain missing or blurred pages, poor pictures, errant marks, etc. We believe these books are essential to this collection and the study of war and have therefore brought them back into print despite these imperfections. We hope you enjoy the unmatched breadth and depth of this collection. From the historical to the just-published works, excerpt from a history of the Jews in modern times, the writer has aimed in the following pages to present on the basis of a number of authoritative historical works a digest of leading events in the history of modern Jewry and the conclusions to be drawn from them. Details have been resorted to mainly in so far as they helped to bring out and corroborate the general picture. Facts and data were condensed but nothing was allowed to escape that could in any way serve to portray a phase or a movement. On occasions indeed, the writer found himself impelled to sin on the side of greater elucidation and to expatiate on matters which ordinarily a historian might barely refer to. This he did not without full consciousness of the peculiarity of the treatment but in order to subserve thereby the tendency underlying his work. He has however guarded against causing the historian to be lost in the preacher, as the work itself will, he hopes, amply bear out.
