The Pure Theory of International Trade

2014-03-31

there has long been a need for a systematic introduction to the modern pure theory of international trade that would take the student through a careful introduction to the tools of analysis and the main logical propositions into the application of the theory to practical problems of international economic policy trade theory should be part and parcel of price theory distinguished only by the fact that other countries form part of the natural opportunities and natural constraints that a country confronts in its efforts to bend nature to its desire to produce utility yielding goods and services but its exposition is often confused by the attachment of its expositors to obsolete problems and backward analytical techniques this book covers in detail classical neoclassical and modern theories of international trade with special attention to problems of equilibrium growth and welfare and discusses the work of all major contributors in this field from ricardo and mill through meade heckscher and ohlin to the growth models of johnson solow and uzawa all problems are clearly stated and the easiest and most convenient solutions are sought in each case with the more technical topics in the field discussed in several chapters and appendixes that may be omitted for less advanced students without interrupting the continuity of the book the book s coverage is complete and entirely up to date it is written primarily for advanced undergraduate and graduate courses in international trade but it will also serve as an important reference tool for professional economists working in this field and will be of considerable interest to students and practitioners dealing with problems of economic development and international business relationships more generally

miltiades chacholiades studied at the athens school of economics and business science in athens greece and received his doctorate from the massachusetts institute of technology he has taught at new york university and the university of california in los angeles and is presently professor of economics at georgia state university his articles have been published in a number of international professional economic journals

the climate crisis is humanmade its main cause is the burning of fossil fuels to combat climate change we have to understand how we arrived at where we are this book explores the reasons why human societies have embarked on the trajectory of ever increasing use of fossil fuels population growth desire for freedom from want and profit seeking all played major roles in shaping human history but there has been no inevitable drive towards heating up the atmosphere in the pursuit of social objectives to sustain a growing population more natural resources are required but their use does not need to generate climate change no logic of modernity links freedom with a kind of material abundance that requires the burning of fossil fuels no logic of capital necessarily ties the search for profit to the extraction of fossil resources examining the critical junctures in human history when resource regimes changed this book identifies the social problems that were meant to be solved by burning fossil fuels and the power hierarchies that shaped the decisions to use them wagner argues that the key choices that led to the climate emergency were made relatively recently during the second half of the 20th century they are close enough in time for us to undo the prevailing social logic of fossil fuels by redefining the key problems that humankind is facing and reshaping the existing mechanisms of power we can take the decisive action needed to reduce our dependence on fossil fuels and avert the worst consequences of climate change
