Protecting Foreign Investment 2003 establishing an investment promotion agency has become a central part of most countries development strategies today there are more than 150 investment promotion agencies worldwide yet very little is known about what these agencies have been really doing notably in emerging countries and whether they have been effective in influencing investors decisions using data from a new survey on 58 countries morisset shows that greater investment promotion is associated with higher cross country foreign direct investment fdi flows on top of the influence of the country s investment climate and market size but this result has to be qualified on several counts first the effectiveness of the agency depends on the country s environment in which it operates an agency in a poor investment climate is less effective at attracting investment second the scope of activities that an agency undertakes influences its performance morisset s empirical analysis indicates that agencies devoting more resources on policy advocacy are more effective because such activity is not only beneficial to foreign investors but also to domestic investors in contrast investment generation or targeting strategies appear expensive and risky especially in countries with poor investment climates finally certain internal characteristics of the agencies are associated with greater effectiveness the agencies that have established reporting mechanisms to the country s highest policymakers the president or prime minister or to the private sector have been systematically more efficient at attracting foreign direct investment such institutional links are crucial because they contribute to strengthen the government s commitment as well as reinforce the agency s credibility and visibility in the business community
