Educational Theory as Theory of Conduct

1987-01-01

chambliss presents clearly the position that educational theory is a theory of conduct rather than an applied science it is theory of conduct not about conduct he reveals the richness of this idea and examines the various ways it has been discussed in the works of aristotle rousseau dewey and others he also demonstrates its timeliness for today s educators by presenting it as an antidote to the current widespread tendency of trying to quantify conduct to treat education as a thing to be measured this dissertation argues that conduct and behavior were believed essential for determining one's post mortem fate from the earliest periods of both ancient egypt and ancient greece part one of this four part study examines plato's eschatological myths and provides a complete catalog and brief discussion of all references in them to conduct and behavior that affect one's fate in the afterlife part two traces the evolution of the concept of the afterlife from homer to the dramatists also cataloging all references to the afterlife that mention conduct and behavior this part of the study demonstrates that the concept of reward and retribution in an afterlife based on conduct in this life is already found in homer however it is in pythagorean and orphic circles of greater greece that it reaches its most dramatic development and from that milieu provides such an enormous impact on plato the third part deals with the connection between conduct and the afterlife in ancient egypt up to the time of the book of the dead an extensive catalog of egyptian virtues and vices that have afterlife consequences is compiled from the religious texts of the 5th to 18th dynasty in part four the relationship between conduct and behavior and the afterlife beliefs of the two societies are compared and contrasted in the earliest periods the afterlife texts appear to be concerned only with the elite the king in egyptian 5th dynasty pyramid texts and the heroes in homeric and hesiodic greece this study argues that there is some evidence in the early texts of both societies for a belief that commoners could also be rewarded or punished in an afterlife in later periods both societies religious texts dealing with the afterlife exhibit a much more developed democratization as post mortem beliefs became more democratic conduct and behavior grew in importance however from the earliest time periods both societies believe that the gods primarily maat in egypt and dike in greece are responsible for the proper ordering of the cosmos and that violations of that order will call down the most dire consequences the loss of a beneficent afterlife themselves who were hardly prepared for the strike of lightning that would upend their lives and then to the harris county arresting officers including a sheriff s deputy who claimed he had looked eye to eye in the faces of the men as they allegedly fornicated carpenter skillfully navigates houston s complex gay world of the late 1990s where a group of activists and court officers some of them closeted themselves refused to bury what initially seemed to be a minor arrest the author charts not only the careful legal strategy that lambda legal attorneys adopted to make the case compatible to a conservative supreme court but also the miscalculations of the houston prosecutors who assumed that the nation s extant sodomy laws would be upheld masterfully reenacting the arguments that riveted spectators and justices alike in 2003 flagrant conduct then reaches a point where legal history becomes literature animating a supreme court decision as few writers have done in situating lawrence v texas within the larger framework of america s four century persecution of gay men and lesbians flagrant conduct compellingly demonstrates that gay history is an integral part of our national civil rights story by examining traders costs and margins and the spatial and temporal integration of maize markets we find that malawi s maize market is pyramidal in structure and highly competitive at lower tiers of trade but oligopolistic at higher tiers the market channels vary across seasons with switches between trader types and instances of rural urban trade reversals there is considerable inequality of sales revenues among traders of similar capacities and a widespread lack of structured trading despite existing institutions a high ratio of marketing costs to revenue suggests marketing inefficiencies malawi maize prices were highly seasonal and more volatile than neighboring countries in contrast to previous studies our findings show weak spatial integration of markets and slow price adjustments to long run equilibrium values even among short distance market pairs the study highlights five pathways to improving malawi s maize marketing system 1 increased policy predictability to promote private sector investment 2 institutionalization of quality grades and standardization of weights and measures 3 increased commercialization of smallholder maize production 4 investment in enabling infrastructure and 5 the promotion of structured trading this report responds to a complaint arising from a survey relating to local national health service nhs services in mr hunter s constituency of cheadle and carried out by mr hunter and funded from his communications allowance ca there were three elements to the complaint that the survey contained material that should not have been included in a ca funded survey that it should not have been circulated outside the constituency and that publicity for the survey in a newsletter funded and circulated by his local party in one part of his constituency amounted to exploitation of the survey for party political purposes the committee agree with the parliamentary commissioner for standards that the survey included an incorrect imprint which suggested that it was to party rather parliamentary in origin and that the ca should not have been distributed outside the constituency
