in christ died for our sins jarvis j williams argues a twofold thesis first that paul in romans presents jesus death as both a representation of and a substitute for jews and gentiles second that the jewish martyrological narratives in certain second temple jewish texts are a background behind paul s presentation of jesus death by means of careful textual analysis williams argues that the jewish martyrological narratives appropriated and applied levitical cultic language and isaianic language to the deaths of the torah observant jewish martyrs in order to present their deaths as a representation a substitution and as israel s yom kippur for non torah observant jews williams seeks to show that paul appropriated and applied this same language and conceptuality in order to present jesus death as the death of a torah observant jew serving as a representation a substitution and as the yom kippur for both jews and gentiles scholars working in the areas of romans pauline theology second temple judaism atonement in paul or early christian origins will find much to stimulate and provoke in these pages where did the idea of sin arise from in this meticulously argued book david konstan takes a close look at classical greek and roman texts as well as the bible and early judaic and christian writings and argues that the fundamental idea of sin arose in the hebrew bible and the new testament although this original meaning was obscured in later jewish and christian interpretations through close philological examination of the words for sin in particular the hebrew hata and the greek hamartia he traces their uses over the centuries in four chapters and concludes that the common modern definition of sin as a violation of divine law indeed has antecedents in classical greco roman conceptions but acquired a wholly different sense in the hebrew bible and new testament matt jenson argues that the image of being curved in on oneself is the best paradigm for understanding sin relationally that it has sufficient explanatory breadth and depth to be of service to contemporary christian theology he looks to augustine as the christian source for this image in his various references to humanity s turn to itself though the threads of a relational account of sin are not drawn together with any systematic consequence until martin luther s description of homo incurvatus in se in his commentary on romans luther radicalizes augustine s conception by applying this relational view of sin to the totus homo and by emphasizing its appearance above all in homo religiosus the western tradition of sin understood paradigmatically as pride has been recently called into question by feminist theologians daphne hampson s critique of luther on this front is considered and critiqued though she is right to call attention to the insufficiency of his and augustine s myopic focus on pride the question remains whether incurvatus in se can operate paradigmatically as an umbrella concept covering a far wider range of sins karl barth s extension of incurvatus in se to apply more broadly to pride sloth and falsehood suggests that incurvature can do just that sin and the church perspectives and principles for powerful christian living is a timely message for today this book is born out of crystal scott s own personal christian experience and journey and is a reflection of god s grace patience and providence she discloses that while forever a work in progress she has received revelation and understanding through her relationship with god that affords her the opportunity to enlighten others as she has been enlightened what you don t know can hurt as related to the issue of sin and the church i consider this more than a mere cliché what you don t know can indeed hurt you and this hurt is more and more apparent in the church which is the body of christ his believers and followers there is a rapid increase of spiritual decline in the church that is quite alarming and its impact is far reaching all too often there seems to be very little difference between church people and those who do not claim to be followers of christ i contend without apology that there is an expectation of the church that god has which is not being carried out as it should be in the face of what seems gloom and doom for the church god raises a word of enlightenment and encouragement god knows there are some who are innocently led astray by erroneous doctrine and confused and he cares he also cares about those who innocently or deceptively lead others astray and he offers grace forgiveness and restoration to the repentant heart included in this book are the following true christian doctrine lifestyles that are not indicative of christianity and holiness essential keys for powerful christian living statistical data personal testimonies and interviews and much more sin and the church perspectives and principles for powerful christian living good news in confusing and troubled times
