in many african countries litigants experience significant uncertainty in their attempts to enforce foreign judgments drawing on the experiences of the united kingdom and the united states vis à vis efforts to attain an effective global legal framework on foreign judgments this book undertakes a comparative analysis of how south african and nigerian courts can promote the recognition and enforcement of foreign judgments in a fair manner this comparative analysis is made considering both african countries as paradigms of their respective legal traditions the author a legal consultant and academic in private international law analyses stage by stage the challenging process that litigants face when they seek to enforce foreign judgments in south africa and nigeria this analysis includes insightful consideration of broader issues such as the following how challenges faced by judgment creditors may be circumvented practical issues impeding the free movement of foreign judgments impact of globalisation increase in international commercial transactions and regionalism on private international law application of fairness how territorial sovereignty and state interests in international commerce impede the free movement of foreign judgments and qualified obligation under which courts would presumptively enforce foreign judgments subject to certain exceptions and to the balancing of competing interests between private litigants and the state the comparative analysis is undergirded by relevant case law spanning decades in africa and centuries in europe and the united states in summary the author projects a clear case for predictability and certainty in the recognition and enforcement of foreign judgments as well as how to go about it thus offering lawyers a strategic position to weigh their options in contemplating enforcement of foreign judgments in any jurisdiction even beyond the african region this innovative approach will also be of particular value to policymakers at national levels international and regional economic organisations as well as scholars in private international law and international commercial law generally this is regardless of their specific legal area or niche especially considering the dearth of literature in african private international law since emerging from the mire of its apartheid past south africa has become a key player in sub saharan africa the very significant challenge of creating a truly national military during a period in which south africa has also wrestled with tough internal socio economic problems has left the south african national defence force sandf in a weakened state despite this in recent years the branches of the sandf particularly the south african sa army have made a considerable contribution to efforts to bring peace and stability to the african continent a critical step in building a capable and confident future sa army has been the commencement of the army s vision 2020 forward planning process recent political changes in both the united states and south africa have opened up a new window of opportunity for developing a productive partnership between the two nations this monograph outlines ways in which the united states can contribute to the sa army s vision 2020 program so as to help optimize south africa s potential contribution to the emergence of a peaceful and stable africa the primary product of the vision 2020 program to date is the recently document titled the future sa army strategy informally referred to as strategy 2020 strategy 2020 outlines two central objectives for the future sa army to deter potential adversaries and where that fails to successfully engage and defeat actual adversaries that threaten south africa s territorial integrity sovereignty or vital interests and to contribute to peacekeeping peace enforcement and stability operations in the continent at large vi an ancillary function for the sa army will be to provide support to the nation s population in response to threats to human security that are beyond the ability of the nation s other security forces to address and to contribute to socio economic development in south africa in response to its dual mandate strategy 2020 outlines a future sa army force structure composed of a mechanized division optimized for conventional warfare manned primarily by reservists and kept at a sub optimum level of readiness a motorized division primarily composed of active component infantry brigades and prepared for routine expeditionary deployments on peace and stability missions and a special operations brigade designed to undertake quick reaction and early entry operations while there is much to be lauded in strategy 2020 the dual mandate force structure it proposes is problematic for many reasons the central argument of this monograph is that the proposed force structure will not maximize south africa s ability to contribute to expeditionary stability and peacekeeping opportunities nor will it leave south africa militarily prepared for a significant conventional threat to her sovereignty territorial integrity or vital interests the united states and her north atlantic treaty organization nato allies should therefore seek opportunities to enable the sa army to design a force structure agile and flexible enough to meet both conventional threats to its territorial integrity and nonconventional threats to extraterritorial stability
