Iceberg Slim's Memories of a Chulo (1967) is a different type of American history, the story of a young man determined to take what society does not want to give: a raw, boiling portrait of brutality, cunning, and greed of a pimp in the lower depths of Chicago. A warning from a genuine survivor that almost 50 years later still feels like the first day, this is the story of Iceberg Slim's secret inner world: the smells, the sounds, the fears, and the small triumphs in his peculiar world, the ever-present dangers of prison, addiction, and death on a journey to hell of a man who lived to tell the story and gave voice to prostitutes and con artists of the ghetto. The book that brought black literature to the streets, showing the hip-hop generation what it was all about, the art of the war, Sun Tzu, and the old China pimp, it is the dangerous streets of Los Angeles.

From the late 1960s until it closed in 2008, Holloway House specialized in cheap paperbacks with page-turning narratives featuring black protagonists in crime stories, conspiracy thrillers, prison novels, and westerns. From Iceberg Slim's Pimp to Donald Goines's Never Die Alone, the thread that tied all of these books together and made them distinct from the majority of American pulp was an unfailing veneration of black masculinity, zeroing in on the uncontested center of the black pulp fiction universe for more than four decades was the los angeles publisher holloway house from the late 1960s until it closed in 2008 holloway house specialized in cheap paperbacks with page turning narratives featuring black protagonists in crime stories conspiracy thrillers prison novels and westerns from iceberg slim s pimp to donald goines s never die alone the thread that tied all of these books together and made them distinct from the majority of american pulp was an unfailing veneration of black masculinity zeroing in on holloway house street players explores how this world of black pulp fiction was produced received and recreated over time and across different communities of readers kinohi nishikawa contends that black pulp fiction was built on white readers fears of the feminization of society and the appeal of black masculinity as a way to counter it in essence it was the original form of blaxploitation a strategy of mass marketing race to suit the reactionary fantasies of a white audience but while chauvinism and misogyny remained troubling yet constitutive aspects of this literature from 1973 onward holloway house moved away from publishing sleaze for a white audience to publishing solely for black readers the standard account of this literary phenomenon is based almost entirely on where this literature ended up in the hands of black male working class readers when it closed holloway house was synonymous with genre fiction written by black authors for black readers a field of cultural production that nishikawa terms the black literary underground but as street players demonstrates this cultural authenticity had to be created promoted and in some cases made up and there is a story of exploitation at the heart of black pulp fiction s origins that cannot be ignored it s a party that s the best description i can give this effort of prose when i started writing it i wanted to give a party for the world because i felt truth was the best condiment i could bring and the world needed a party i m not the one that is i am the other one i am not iceberg but i was young iceberg a character i was supposed to play in a movie the adage that life imitates art is true dr king once said the world is sick and i know that laughter and a good party can be a healing factor when it comes down to it so when i started writing this book i had two purposes one to give a party for the world and two to help heal i had to search my soul and past experiences to do that the pimp game was the basic common denominator i could think of to accomplish my purpose and iceberg was the most qualified example i could think of and most worthy this book is representative of those thoughts and memories i had of my encounter with the best that ever did it and got away with it i wanted to play him on film or be him in a movie about his life or pimp the story of my life i didn't know at the time it would take a life time for me to do that however in synopsis this is the most accurate rendition of those times and experiences i had with the master bobby lancaster or robert beck or pen name iceberg slim i would like to first thank the pimp god who is the god of everybody because there is no god but god next i would like to thank yesuah ham mashiach the nazzarine jesus christ almighty father god's creation the divine intercessor the one who said father it is not my will be done but thy will be done and next of all my family friends and whores who helped me thank you
