these legends are what we would expect to find as remnants of a historical event on the scale we have never seen before or since in 2016 southern china experienced such heavy rain the water broke through levees causing devastating floods based on the experiences of many flood victims this fictional story follows lan and her family who are rescued from the roof of their home in xingtai after leaving a shelter they have no other option than to return home to rebuild without enough food power or a way to communicate interspersed with facts and case studies about the different ways floods start this narrative tells a story common to many people who have had to flee and rebuild their lives after losing their homes possessions and sometimes loved ones according to the international disaster database em dat over the last seventy years floods have shown the fastest rate of increase relative to any other type of disasters devastation due to these events occurs almost daily even though our technological capabilities for dealing with floods have advanced rapidly over the same period and while global economic growth per capita has doubled flood events have become ever more disastrous does this mean that our technological developments have advanced independently from the social and wider ecological needs flood risk the holistic perspective is a direct response to this question and it argues that this paradoxical situation is a result from our narrow and fragmented perception of reality which has been characteristic of our academic disciplines and government agencies it suggests that the way forward can be found only if we broaden our view and learn how the natural or social phenomena can provoke a response in a society or a social group which in turn can integrate the handbook developments and so on again and again in what has the potential to become a network of interactions and relationships through positive feedback or coevolving cycles the holistic perspective however may raise the following question if everything is connected to everything else how can we ever hope to understand anything our response draws from the understandings brought by complexity theory where individual elements coevolve together both in development and application this recognition opens a new analysis which goes beyond the direct objects or actors of concern risk forecasting early warning land use planning technology and systems for example and into the relationships between them the book suggests that our initial response to this and many other challenges is to change our perception from a disciplinary and defensive one to a progressive or transcendental and transdisciplinary i e the one that turns challenges into the possibilities that can re shape our future the book is structured in eight chapters chapter 1 provides exposure to the complexity of flood related issues and illustrates diversity of multiple points of view chapter 2 elaborates on the history of holistic thinking with connection to the flood resilience process chapter 3 discusses the holistic risk governance approach which progresses beyond the integrated urban flood management chapter 4 describes the green cities initiative an initiative which is essentially holistic in its nature as it aims to improve transport energy efficiency industrial metabolism including water supply and distribution as well as drainage and sewerage services through the holistic lens of interactions between different sectors chapter 5 discusses various risk assessment practices and it concludes that many practices that omits social ethical and wider ecological points of view will be severely restricted in its scope and its reach chapter 6 describes the root causes of floods in the pasig marikina river basin in metro manila philippines chapter 7 reflects upon the key issues and challenges from 2011 thailand floods finally chapter 8 presents some of the key aspects concerning urban stormwater management practice in beijing china a thorough revision of youngbloods two earlier studies how it all began and faith of our fathers the book of genesis provides students with a vast resource for understanding the beginning of the universe marriage society redemption life sin and civilization ronald youngblood makes a profound application of the genesis message to the issues of contemporary life early chinese ideas about the construction of an ordered human space received narrative form in a set of stories dealing with the rescue of the world and its inhabitants from a universal flood this book demonstrates how early chinese stories of the re creation of the world from a watery chaos provided principles underlying such fundamental units as the state lineage the married couple and even the human body these myths also supplied a charter for the major political and social institutions of warring states 481 221 bc and early imperial 220 bc ad 220 china in some versions of the tales the flood was triggered by rebellion while other versions linked the taming of the flood with the creation of the institution of a lineage and still others linked the taming to the process in which the divided principles of the masculine and the feminine were joined in the married couple to produce an ordered household while availing themselves of earlier stories and of central religious rituals of the period these myths transformed earlier divinities or animal spirits into rulers or ministers and provided both etiologies and legitimation for the emerging political and social institutions that culminated in the creation of a unitary empire volume i of the thirty eight volume translation of Ṭabarī s great history begins with the creation of the world and ends with the time of noah and the flood it not only brings a vast amount of speculation about the early history of mankind into sharp muslim focus but it also synchronizes ancient iranian ideas about the prehistory of mankind with those inspired by the qur an and the bible the volume is thus an excellent guide to the cosmological views of many of Ṭabarī s contemporaries the translator franz rosenthal one of the world s foremost scholars of arabic has also written an extensive introduction to the volume that presents all the facts known about Ṭabarī s personal and professional life professor rosenthal s meticulous and original scholarship has yielded a valuable bibliography and chronology of Ṭabarī s writings both those preserved in manuscript and those alluded to by other authors the introduction and first volume of the translation of the history form a ground breaking contribution to islamic historiography in english and will prove to be an invaluable source of information for those who are interested in middle eastern history but are unable to read the basic works in arabic

according to the international disaster database em dat over the last seventy years floods have shown the fastest rate of increase relative to any other type of disasters devastation due to these events occurs almost daily even though our technological capabilities for dealing with floods have advanced rapidly over the same period and while global economic growth per capita has doubled flood events have become ever more disastrous does this mean that our technological developments have advanced independently from the social and wider ecological needs flood risk the holistic perspective is a direct response to this question and it argues that this paradoxical situation is a result from our narrow and fragmented perception of reality which has been characteristic of our academic disciplines and government agencies it suggests that the way forward can be found only if we broaden our view and learn how the natural or social phenomena can provoke a response in a society or a social group which in turn can trigger the technical developments and so on again and again in what has the potential to become a network of interactions and relationships through positive feedback or coevolving cycles the holistic perspective however may raise the following question if everything is connected to everything else how can we ever hope to understand anything our response draws from the understandings brought by complexity theory where individual elements coevolve together both in development and application this recognition opens a new analysis which goes beyond the direct objects or actors of concern risk forecasting early warning land use planning technology and systems for example and into the relationships between them the book suggests that our initial response to this and many other challenges is to change our perception from a disciplinary and defensive one to a progressive or transcendental and transdisciplinary i e the one that turns challenges into the possibilities that can re shape our future the book is structured in eight chapters chapter 1 provides exposure to the complexity of flood related issues and illustrates diversity of multiple points of view chapter 2 elaborates on the history of holistic thinking with connection to the flood resilience process chapter 3 discusses the holistic risk governance approach which progresses beyond the integrated urban flood management chapter 4 describes the green cities initiative an initiative which is essentially holistic in its nature as it aims to improve transport energy efficiency industrial metabolism including water supply and distribution as well as drainage and sewerage services through the holistic lens of interactions between different sectors chapter 5 discusses various risk assessment practices and it concludes that any practice that omits social ethical and wider ecological points of view will be severely restricted in its scope and its reach chapter 6 describes the root causes of floods in the pasig marikina river basin in metro manila philippines chapter 7 reflects upon the key issues and challenges from 2011 thailand floods finally chapter 8 presents some of the key aspects concerning urban stormwater management practice in beijing china
