in the occupied clinic saiba varma explores the psychological ontological and political entanglements between medicine and violence in indian controlled kashmir the world's most densely militarized place into a long history of occupations insurgencies suppressions natural disasters and a crisis of public health infrastructure come interventions in human distress especially those of doctors and humanitarians who struggle against an epidemic more than sixty percent of the civilian population suffers from depression anxiety ptsd or acute stress drawing on encounters between medical providers and patients in an array of settings varma reveals how colonization is embodied and how overlapping state practices of care and violence create disorienting worlds for doctors and patients alike varma shows how occupation creates worlds of disrupted meaning in which clinical life is connected to political disorder subverting biomedical neutrality ethics and processes of care in profound ways by highlighting the imbrications between humanitarianism and militarism and between care and violence varma theorizes care not as a redemptive practice but as a fraught sphere of action that is never quite what it seems
