in this intimate study juliet miller maps the artworks that have influenced her throughout her life and examines how she has integrated them into her development as a psychotherapist working from the premise that our initial reactions to art provide a crucial key to self analysis miller interrogates the significance of different artists including bourgeois vermeer rousseau and kahlo and analyses how personal circumstances recollections and emotions have affected responses to their work chapters incorporate clinical material from miller s practice linking into her own anxieties about sitting with and connecting with patients and touching on themes including creativity character identity and communication through this exploration she questions many of the conventions of art and psychotherapy and suggests ways in which looking at art can be used as a psychological tool art memoir and jung offers a highly personal and innovative perspective on meaning in art and how it can be used to explore jungian thought as based in the aesthetic and how the aesthetic can inform depth psychology with these monumental landscape photographs david parker is making a clear statement about what the art of photography still might achieve his imagery is an intriguing blend of the objective and the subjective the formal and the allegorical it is complex rich in illusion yet it remains photography first and foremost it is the sheer visual elan the sublime beauty with which he has transcribed these mysterious views of rock canyon and mountain that draws us into contemplation of their more subtle virtues this is landscape photography that enchants its space is deep space surrounding and thrilling us it is a delight to see in david parker s large but not daunting images photographs that wear their size easily they were conceived on a large scale and the size to which they have been enlarged is correct conceptually technically and aesthetically these are theatrical photographs in the best sense they are literate thoughtful and imaginative and truly a joy to explore the modernity of english art reconceptualises the history of english painting from 1914 to the end of the 1920s whereas most accounts have tended to see the period as marked by a tension between the native tradition and modernism this ground breaking book rethinks the 1920s by situating both modernist and non modernist painters within a wider cultural history established figures such as paul nash edward wadsworth and wyndham lewis as well as lesser known artists like charles sims john armstrong and ethelbert white are discussed and illustrated in a series of innovative readings within this context the modernity of english art offers a new account of painting in england after 1914 and argues for a strongly revisionist view of the significance of the modern during this important but neglected period in english art art emotion and ethics is a systematic investigation of the relation of art to morality a topic that has been of central and recurring interest to the philosophy of art since plato berys gaut explores the various positions that have been taken in this debate and argues that an artwork is always aesthetically flawed insofar as it possesses a moral defect that is aesthetically relevant three main arguments are developed for this view these involve showing how moral goodness is itself a kind of beauty that artworks can teach us about morality and that this is often an aesthetic merit in them and that our emotional responses to works of art are properly guided in part by moral considerations art emotion and ethics also contains detailed interpretations of a wide range of artworks including rembrandt s bathsheba and nabokov s lolita which show that ethical criticism can yield rich and plausible accounts of individual works gaut develops a new theory of the nature of aesthetic value explores how art can teach us about the world and what we morally ought to do by guiding our imaginings and argues that we can have genuine emotions towards people and events that we know are merely fictional characterised by its clarity and sustained argument this book will be of interest to anyone who wants to understand the relation of art to morality

a lushly illustrated magisterial exploration of the imaginative truth of the gospel in the modern academy truth and imagination are thought to be mutually exclusive but what if truth can spring from other fonts like art literature and invention the legacy of the enlightenment favors historical and empirical inquiry above all other methods for searching for truth but this assumption stymies our theological explorations though the historicity of jesus s life death and resurrection is important it is not of sole importance for instance is john s gospel any less true than the synoptics just because it s less historically accurate david brown challenges us to expand our understanding of the gospel past source criticism and historical jesus studies to include works of imagination reading scripture in tandem with works of art throughout the centuries brown reenvisions the gospel as an open text scholars of theology and biblical studies freed from literalism will find new avenues of revelation in gospel as work of art this volume includes over one hundred color illustrations leo tolstoy s and vladimir nabokov s radically opposed aesthetic worldviews emanate from a shared intuition that approaching a text skeptically is easy but trusting it is hard two figures central to the russian literary tradition tolstoy the moralist and nabokov the aesthete seem to have sharply conflicting ideas about the purpose of literature tatyana gershkovich undermines this familiar opposition by identifying a shared fear at the root of their seemingly antithetical aesthetics that one s experience of the world might be entirely one s own private and impossible to share through art art in doubt tolstoy nabokov and the problem of other minds reconceives the pair s celebrated fiction and contentious theorizing as coherent lifelong efforts to reckon with the problem of other people s minds gershkovich demonstrates how the authors shared yearning for an impossibly intimate knowledge of others formed and deformed their fiction and brought them through parallel logic to their rival late styles tolstoy s rustic simplicity and nabokov s baroque complexity unlike those authors for whom the skeptical predicament ends in absurdity or despair tolstoy and nabokov both hold out hope that skepticism can be overcome not by force of will but with the right kind of text one designed to withstand our impulse to doubt it through close readings of key canonical works anna karenina the kreutzer sonata hadji murat the gift pale fire this book brings the twin titans of russian fiction to bear on contemporary debates about how we read now and how we ought to in the course of these fifty years we have become a nation of public speakers everyone speaks now we are now more than ever a debating that is a parliamentary people the times 1873 the art of eloquence considers how byron dickens tennyson and joyce responded to this parliamentary people and examines the ways in which they and their publics conceived the relations between political speech and literary endeavour drawing on a wide range of sources classical rhetoric hansard newspaper reports elocutionary manuals treatises on crowd theory this book argues that oratorical procedures and languages were formative influences on literary culture from romanticism to modernism matthew bevis focuses attention on how the four writers negotiated contending political demands in and through their work and on how they sought to cultivate forms of literary detachment that could gain critical purchase on political arguments providing a close reading of the relations between printed words and public voices as well as a broader engagement with debates about the socio political inflections of the aesthetic realm this is a major study of how styles of writing can explore and embody forms of responsible political conduct
