Oxbridge Blues and Other Stories 1984 the central thesis of lawrence hogue s book is that criticism of afro american literature has left out of account the way in which ideological pressures dictate the canon this fresh approach to the study of the social ideological and political dynamics of the afro american literary text in the twentieth century based on the foucauldian concept of literature as social institution examines the universalization that power effects how literary texts are appropriated to meet ideological concerns and needs and the continued oppression of dissenting voices hogue presents an illuminating discussion of the publication and review history of major and neglected texts he illustrates the acceptance of texts as exotica as sociological documents or as carriers of sufficient literary conventions to receive approbation although the sixties movement allowed the text to move to the periphery of the dominant ideology providing some new myths about the afro american historical past this marginal position was subsequently sabotaged co opted or appropriated afros became a fad presidents gave the soul handshake the hip talking black was dressing one style and talking another this study includes extended discussion of four works ernest j gaines s the autobiography of miss jane pittman alice walker s the third life of grange copeland albert murray s train whistle guitar and toni morrison s sula hogue assesses the informing worldviews of each and the extent and nature of their acceptance by the dominant american cultural apparatus

African American Culture and Legal Discourse 2005 musical activity is one of the most ubiquitous and highly valued forms of social interaction in north america from sporting events to political rallies concerts to churches its use as an affective agent for political and religious programs suggests that it has ethical significance but it is one of the most undertheorized aspects of both theological ethics and music scholarship music for others care justice and relational ethics in christian music fills part of this scholarly gap by focusing on the religious aspects of musical activity particularly on the practices of christian communities it is based on ethnomusicological fieldwork at three protestant churches and interviews with a group of seminary students combined with theories of discourse formation response and care ethics oriented toward restorative justice the book argues that relationships are ontological for both human beings and musical activity it further argues that musical meaning and emotion converge in human bodies such that music participates in personal and communal identity construction in affective ways yet these constructions are not always just thus music for others argues that music is ethical when it preserves people in and restores people to just relationships with each other and thereby with god
