over the last decade public political and scholarly attention has focused on human trafficking and contemporary forms of slavery yet as human rights scholars alison brysk and austin choi fitzpatrick argue most current work tends to be more descriptive and focused on trafficking for sexual exploitation in from human trafficking to human rights brysk choi fitzpatrick and a cast of experts demonstrate that it is time to recognize human trafficking as more a matter of human rights and social justice rooted in larger structural issues relating to the global economy human security u s foreign policy and labor and gender relations such reframing involves overcoming several of the most difficult barriers to the development of human rights discourse women s rights as human rights labor rights as a confluence of structure and agency the interdependence of migration and discrimination the ideological and policy hegemony of the united states in setting the terms of debate and a politics of global justice and governance throughout this volume the argument is clear a deep human rights approach can improve analysis and response by recovering human rights principles that match protection with empowerment and recognize the interdependence of social rights and personal freedoms together contributors to the volume conclude that rethinking trafficking requires moving our orientation from sex to slavery from prostitution to power relations and from rescue to rights on the basis of this argument from human trafficking to human rights offers concrete policy approaches to improve the global response necessary to end slavery responsibly

Code of Federal Regulations, Title 8, Aliens and Nationality, Revised as of January 1, 2011 1988 international migration prospects and policies offers a comprehensive up to date survey of global patterns of international migration and the policies employed to manage the flows it shows that international migration is not rooted in poverty or rapid population growth but in the expansion and consolidation of global markets as nations are structurally transformed by their incorporation into global markets people are displaced from traditional livelihoods and become international migrants in seeking to work abroad they do not necessarily move to the closest or richest destination but to places already connected to their countries of origin socially economically and politically when they move migrants rely heavily on social networks created by earlier waves of immigrants and in recent years professional migration brokers have become increasingly common developing countries generally benefit from international migration because migrant savings and remittances provide foreign earnings to finance balance of payments deficits and make productive investments some developing nations have gone so far as to establish programs or ministries dedicated to the export of workers developed nations in contrast focus more on the social and economic costs of immigrants and seek to reduce their numbers regulate their characteristics and limit their access to social services over time receiving nations have gravitated toward a similar set of restrictive policies yielding undocumented migration as a worldwide phenomenon globalization also creates infrastructures of transportation communication and social networks to put developed societies within reach in the latter ageing populations and segmenting markets create a persistent demand for immigrant workers all these trends are likely to intensify in the coming years to make immigration policy a key political issue in the twenty first century
