the most acute water crises occur in everyday contexts in impoverished rural and urban areas across the global south while they rarely make headlines these crises characterized by inequitable access to sufficient and clean water affect over one billion people globally what is less known though is that millions of these same global citizens are at the forefront of responding to the challenges of water privatization climate change deforestation mega hydraulic projects and other threats to accessing water as a critical resource in transforming rural water governance sarah t romano explains the bottom up development and political impact of community based water and sanitation committees caps in nicaragua romano traces the evolution of caps from rural resource management associations into a national political force through grassroots organizing and strategic alliances resource management and service provision is inherently political charging residents fees for service determining rules for household water shutoffs and reconnections and negotiating access to water sources with local property owners constitute just a few of the highly political endeavors resource management associations like caps undertake as part of their day to day work in their communities yet for decades in nicaragua this local work did not reflect political activism in the mid 2000s caps collective push for social change propelled them onto a national stage and into new roles as they demanded recognition from the government romano argues that the transformation of nicaragua s caps into political actors is a promising example of the pursuit of sustainable and equitable water governance particularly in latin america transforming rural water governance demonstrates that when activism informs public policy processes the outcome is more inclusive governance and the potential for greater social and environmental justice
