The Danish director Lars von Trier is undoubtedly one of the world's most important and controversial filmmakers and arguably so because of the depiction of women in his films. He has been criticized for subjecting his female characters to unacceptable levels of violence or reducing them to masochistic self-abnegation as with Bess in Breaking the Waves, she in Antichrist and Joe in Nymphomaniac. At other times it is the women in his films who are dominant or break out in violence as in his adaptation of Euripides' Medea, the conclusion of Dogville and perhaps throughout Nymphomaniac. Lars von Trier's women confront these dichotomies head-on. Editors Rex Butler and David Denny do not take a position either for or against von Trier but rather consider how both attitudes fall short of the real difficulty of his films which may simply not conform to any kind of feminist or indeed anti-feminist politics as they are currently configured using Lacanian psychoanalysis and acknowledging the work of prior scholars on the films. Lars von Trier's women reveal hidden resources for a renewed exterranean concerns the extraction of stuff from the earth a process in which matter goes from being sub to exterranean by opening up a rich archive of nonmodern texts and images from across europe this work offers a bracing riposte to several critical trends in ecological thought by shifting emphasis from emission to extraction usher reorients our perspective away from earthrise like globes and shows what is gained by opening the planet to depths within the book thus maps the material and immaterial connections between the earth from which we extract the human and nonhuman agents of extraction and the extracted matter with which we live daily eschewing the self congratulatory claims of posthumanism usher instead elaborates a productive tension between the materially situated homo of nonmodern humanism and the abstract and aggregated anthropos of the anthropocene in dialogue with michel serres bruno latour and other interdisciplinary work in the environmental humanities usher shows what premodern material can offer to contemporary theory examining textual and visual culture alike usher explores works by ronsard montaigne and rabelais early scientific works by paracelsus and others as well as objects engravings buildings and the salt mines of wieliczka both historicist and speculative in approach exterranean lays the groundwork for a comparative ecocriticism that reaches across and untranslates theoretical affordances between periods and languages
