in all groups from couples to nation states people influence one another much of this influence is benign for example giving advice to friends or serving as role models for our children and students some forms of influence however are clearly morally suspect such as threats of violence and blackmail a great deal of attention has been paid to one form of morally suspect influence namely coercion less attention has been paid to what might be a more pervasive form of influence manipulation the essays in this volume address this relative imbalance by focusing on manipulation examining its nature moral status and its significance in personal and social life they address a number of central questions what counts as manipulation how is it distinguished from coercion and ordinary rational persuasion is it always wrong or can it sometimes be justified and if so when is manipulative influence more benign than coercion can one manipulate unintentionally how does being manipulated to act bear on one's moral responsibility for so acting given various answers to these questions what should we think of practices such as advertising and seduction the enchiridion or handbook of the first century ad stoic epictetus was used as an ethical treatise both in christian monasteries and

by the sixth century pagan neoplatonist simplicius simplicius chose it for beginners rather than aristotle s ethics because it presupposed no knowledge of logic we thus get a fascinating chance to see how a pagan neoplatonist transformed stoic ideas the text was relevant to simplicius because he too like epictetus was teaching beginners how to take the first steps towards eradicating emotion although he is unlike epictetus in thinking that they should give up public life rather than acquiesce if public office is denied them simplicius starts from a platonic definition of the person as rational soul not body ignoring epictetus further whittling down of himself to just his will or policy decisions he selects certain topics for special attention in chapters 1 8 27 and 31 things are up to us despite fate our sufferings are not evil but providential attempts to turn us from the body evil is found only in the human soul but evil is parasitic proclus term on good the gods exist are provident and cannot be bought off with nearly all of this the stoics would agree but for quite different reasons and their own distinctions and definitions are to a large extent ignored this translation of the handbook is published in two volumes this is the second volume covering chapters 27 53 the first covers chapters 1 26
