The Political Map of the World

1990

first published in 1997 and written by two distinguished russian scholars this book examines the problems and prospects of democratic transition in russia since the disintegration of the soviet union specifically it offers a compelling evaluation of the rise and fall of the 1990 russian parliament the problems of transforming what had been a regional assembly into a national parliament are analysed in the context of the failure of perestroika the difficulties of generating pluralist politics the strength of presidential power and the tensions between ideologies of reform on the one hand and the realities of economic crisis on the other the analysis allows them to evaluate the role of political upheaval and conflicts of legitimacy in russian democratization the book is divided into three sections the first offers a theory of transition to modern democracy this provides the framework for the second section an account of the first parliament after the 1990 elections its conflicts with presidential power and the reform agenda of the government and finally its fall the third section examines three particular problems which were decisive in producing the crisis of russian parliamentarianism and democratization voting behaviour in a non party parliamentary setting and its relationship to conflicts between legislature and executive populism and representation and the role of democratic values and procedures in the legislative process drawing on their unrivalled knowledge of issues events and actors nikolai biryukov and victor sergeyev gather and interpret much new evidence to explore their subject in a path breaking study the authors draw on a variety of sources and traditions to produce an original theory of the problems of political stability set up by democratic transition in russia we all rely on the apparent accuracy and objectivity of maps but often do not see the very process of mapping as political are the power and purpose of maps inherently political maps and politics addresses this important question and seeks to emphasize that the apparent objectivity of the map making and map using process cannot be divorced from aspects of the politics of representation maps have played and continue to play a major role in both international and domestic politics they show how visual geographical representations can be made to reflect and advance political agendas in powerful ways the major developments in this field over the last century are responses both to cartographic progression and to a greater emphasis on graphic imagery in societies affected by politicization democratization and consumer and cultural shifts jeremy black asks whether bias free cartography is possible and demonstrates that maps are not straightforward visual texts but contain political and politicizing subtexts that need to be read with care
