Drivers of Climate Change in Urban India

2018-11-20

this study transcends the homogenizing inter national level of argumentation rich versus poor countries and instead looks at a sub national level in two respects 1 geographically it focuses on the rapidly growing megacity of hyderabad 2 in socio economic terms the urban population is disaggregated by taking a lifestyle typology approach for the first time the lifestyle concept traditionally being used in affluent consumer societies is applied to a dynamically transforming and socially heterogeneous urban society methodically the author includes india specific value orientations as well as social practices as markers of social structural differentiation the study identifies differentials of lifestyle induced ghg emissions carbon footprints and underlines the ambiguity of a purely income based differentiation with regard to the levels of contribution to the climate problem

while previous reports have focused solely on the big issues like capital account convertibility bank privatization and priority sector norms a hundred small steps report of the committee on financial sector reforms goes deep into other areas where reforms are less controversial but perhaps as important the report argues that we need a change in mindset for the financial sector one that recognizes that efficiency innovation and value for money are as important for the poor as they are for our new indian multinationals and these will come from improved governance new entry and competition indeed the committee believes that the road to making mumbai an international financial centre runs through every village in india the report is divided into separate self contained chapters the underlying theme behind all the proposals is the need to enhance inclusion growth and stability by allowing players more freedom even while strengthening the financial and regulatory infrastructure the role of the government is to create an enabling environment by building sound financial infrastructure the committee has focused primarily on broad principles and directions without entering too much into details of implementation it emphasizes three important reasons for financial sector reform to include more indians in the growth process to foster growth itself and to improve financial stability flexibility and resilience and thus protect the economy against the kind of turbulence that is affecting the world today the committee recognizes this is a difficult time to propose financial sector reforms in india the near meltdown of the us financial sector seems to be proof that markets and competition do not work this is clearly the wrong lesson to take from the debacle the right lesson is that markets and institutions do succumb occasionally to excesses which is why regulators have to be vigilant the report argues for skilled regulators who encourage growth and innovation even while working harder to contain risks what urban food networks reveal about middle class livability in times of transformation in recent years the concept of livability has captured the global imagination influencing discussions about the implications of climate change on human life and inspiring rankings of most livable cities in popular publications but what really makes for a livable life and for whom cultivating livability takes bengaluru india as a case study a city that is alternately described as india s most and least livable megacity where rapid transformation is undergirded by inequalities evident in the food networks connecting peri urban farmers and the middle class public anthropologist camille frazier probes the meaning of livability in bengaluru through ethnographic work among producers and consumers corporate intermediaries and urban information technology professionals examining the varying efforts to reconfigure processes of food production distribution retail and consumption she reveals how these intersections are often rooted in and exacerbate ongoing forms of disenfranchisement that privilege some lives at the expense of others across asia consumer culture is increasingly shaping everyday life with neoliberal economic and social policies increasingly adopted by governments who see their citizens as individualised sovereign consumers with choices about their lifestyles and identities one aspect of this development has been the emergence of new wealthy middle classes with lifestyle aspirations shaped by national regional and global media especially by a range of new popular lifestyle media which includes magazines television and mobile and social media this book explores how far everyday conceptions and experiences of identity are being transformed by media cultures across the region it considers a range of different media in different asian contexts contrasting how the shaping of lifestyles in asia differs from similar processes in western countries and assessing how the new lifestyle media represents not just a new emergent media culture but also illustrates wider cultural and social changes in the asian region this edited book brings together in one place new studies of rural urban interactions and their implications for regional growth and development in different regions within asia specifically the individual chapters in the book shed light on the different kinds of rural urban interactions that we witness in asian regions particularly those that are based on migration poverty inequality education economic dependence and the flow of goods and services the book departs from the existing literature in three ways first it explicitly recognizes that different kinds of rural urban interactions have dissimilar impacts on the lives and hence on the welfare of the residents of rural and urban regions second the book emphasizes the varied spatial and temporal dimensions of the interactions and the ways in which these dimensions influence rural and urban societies third this book demonstrates the ways in which an understanding of the preceding two points contributes to our knowledge about economic growth and development because asia is the fastest growing and most dynamic continent in the world today the research delineated in the individual chapters of the book provides practical guidance concerning two salient questions first how do we effectively address the economic development challenges stemming from the interactions between alternate rural and urban regions within asia second how do we ensure that the policies we design to address these challenges give rise to broad based economic growth and development that is sustainable rule by aesthetics offers a powerful examination of the process and experience of mass demolition in the world s second largest city of delhi india using delhi s millennial effort to become a world class city the book shows how aesthetic norms can replace the procedures of mapping and surveying typically considered necessary to administer space this practice of evaluating territory based on its adherence to aesthetic norms what ghertner calls rule by aesthetics allowed the state in delhi to intervene in the once ungovernable space of slums overcoming its historical reliance on inaccurate maps and statistics slums hence were declared illegal because they looked illegal an arrangement that led to the displacement of a million slum residents in the first decade of the 21st century drawing on close ethnographic engagement with the slum residents targeted for removal as well as the planners judges and politicians who targeted them the book demonstrates how easily plans laws and democratic procedures can be subverted once the subjects of democracy are seen as visually out of place slum dwellers creative appropriation of dominant aesthetic norms shows however that aesthetic rule does not mark the end of democratic claims making rather it signals a new relationship between the mechanism of government and the practice of politics one in which struggles for a more inclusive city rely more than ever on urban aesthetics in delhi as in aspiring world class cities the world over the changes following more than two decades of economic reforms and globalization of the indian economy at state corporate sector and consumer level raise interesting questions on the ways in which the stakeholders will continue to engage on the world stage politically socially and economically one key feature of global trade over this period has been the growing importance of not only product standards but importantly labor environmental food safety and social standards being essentially a non tariff barrier standards have often become critical to market access and essential to sustained competitiveness this has a clear impact on the manner in which both global and indian business is conducted now and in the future it also underlines the need for a new area of enquiry that addresses the following questions how are the indian public and private actors the state domestic firms local consumers and society influencing and being influenced by such standards do standards really matter in an overwhelmingly informal production sphere with consumers deeply segmented on the basis of a highly skewed distribution of income and with the rural population becoming further marginalized we have limited knowledge about the challenges faced and strategies pursued by these key domestic actors both public and private how have they been able to drive these processes and what are their implications for larger concerns with inequalities and the conditions of the poor how does the omnipresent informality influence compliance encourage multiple standards and affect the chances of addressing institutional dysfunctionality what role does regulation play these are some of the issues dealt with in the book which has chapters focusing on aspects of specific sectors such as microfinance pharmaceuticals automobiles tea trading the role of the state and changing consumer influence we have limited knowledge about the challenges faced and strategies pursued by these key domestic actors both public and private how have they been able to drive these processes and what are the consequences of these changes for the indian economy other emergent economies and for the rest of the developing world in particular what are their implications for the wider indian society especially on concerns with informality inequalities and the conditions of the poor how does informality in its omnipresent form influence compliance encourage multiple standards and chances of addressing institutional dysfunctionality what role does regulation play these are some of the issues dealt within the book wherein chapters focus on aspects of specific sectors trading role of the state and changing influence of the consumer india remains a country mired in poverty with two thirds of its 1.3 billion people living on little more than a few dollars a day just as telling the country s informal working population numbers nearly 500 million or approximately eighty percent of the entire labor force despite these figures and the related structural disadvantages that imperil the lives of so many the indian elite maintain that the poor need only work harder and they too can become rich the results of this ambitious ten year ethnography at exclusive golf clubs in bangalore shatter such self serving illusions in narrow fairways patrick inglis combines participant observation interviews and archival research to show how social mobility among the poor lower caste golf caddies who carry the golf sets of wealthy upper caste members at these clubs is ultimately constrained and narrowed the book highlights how elites secure and extend class and caste privileges while also delivering a necessary rebuke to india's present development strategy which pays far too little attention to promoting quality healthcare education and other basic social services that would deliver real opportunities to the poor

Globalization and Standards india has recorded high levels of unemployment and low labor force participation rates in recent years even before the onset of the covid 19 pandemic and the lockdown how does an episode of unemployment or loss of income affect household consumption expenditure is an important question for designing effective safety nets we use data on household specific episodes of job loss and decline in income from an earlier year march april 2019 to estimate the household response to employment shocks we apply diff in diff and quantile regressions to a high frequency panel data from a nationally representative survey of 1 75 000 households to estimate the impact of a job loss and change in income on household consumption expenditure for urban and rural households and households across different expenditure levels we find that loss of employment of an earning member leads to a significant immediate decline in household consumption expenditure the decline is much larger for urban households and households in the lowest and the highest deciles of monthly per capita durable expenses go down the most expenditure on health and education also goes down significantly and there is evidence of adjustments in discretionary expenses too especially for urban households for households with only one earning member borrowing does not increase after the job loss suggesting credit constraints government cash transfers help rural households as the beneficiaries show a smaller reduction in consumption expenditure after the shock our findings highlight the high vulnerability of urban households to economic shocks and can inform the design and targeting of income support and other safety net programs in india and other developing countries

india is growing into one of asia s most important military powers its defence budget has more than doubled in the past decade and it imports more arms than anyone else in the world but india is still seen as a land power focused on long disputed and militarised borders with pakistan and china rather than the global military force it was in the first half of the twentieth century under british rule is this changing india is acquiring increasing numbers of key platforms aircraft carriers amphibious ships refuelling tankers and transport aircraft that are extending its reach to the indian ocean littoral and beyond but most accounts of this build up have been impressionistic and partial indian power projection assesses the strength reach and purposes of india s maturing capabilities it offers a systematic assessment of india s ability to conduct long range airstrikes from land and sea transport and convey airborne and amphibious forces and develop the institutional and material enablers that turn platforms into capabilities it draws extensively on the lessons of modern expeditionary operations and considers how india s growing interests might shape where and how it uses these evolving capabilities in the future this study finds that indian power projection is in a nascent stage limited in number primarily of use against much weaker adversaries and deficient in some key supporting capabilities india s defence posture will continue to be shaped by local threats rather than distant interests indian leaders remain uncomfortable with talk of military intervention and expeditionary warfare associating these with colonial and superpower excess but as the country s power interests and capabilities all grow it is likely that india will once more find itself using military force beyond its land borders
