Great Expectations 2004-01-01 reading and textual interpretation are ordinary human activities performed inside as well as outside academia but precisely how they function as unique sources of knowledge is not well understood in this book rené van woudenberg explores the nature of reading and how it is distinct from perception and attending to testimony which are two widely acknowledged knowledge sources after distinguishing seven accounts of interpretation van woudenberg discusses the question of whether all reading inevitably involves interpretation and shows that although reading and interpretation often go together they are distinct activities he goes on to argue that both reading and interpretation can be paths to realistically conceived truth and explains the conditions under which we are justified in believing that they do indeed lead us to the truth along the way he offers clear and novel analyses of reading meaning interpretation and interpretative knowledge

□□□□□□□□□□□□ 2018 the ability to use language in more literate ways has always been a central outcome of education today however being literate requires more than functional literacy the recognition of printed words as meaningful it requires the knowledge of how to use language as a tool for analyzing synthesizing and integrating what is heard or read in order to arrive at new interpretations specialists in education cognitive psychology learning disabilities communication sciences and disorders and other fields have studied the language learning problems of school age children from their own perspectives all have tended to emphasize either the oral language component or phonemic awareness the major influence of phonemic awareness on learning to read and spell is well researched but it is not the only relevant focus for efforts in intervention and instruction an issue is that applications are usually the products of a single discipline or profession and few integrate an understanding of phonemic awareness with an understanding of the ways in which oral language comprehension and expression support reading writing and spelling thus what we have learned about language remains disconnected from what we have learned about literacy interrelationships between language and literacy are not appreciated and educational services for students with language and learning disabilities are fragmented as a result this unique book a multidisciplinary collaboration bridges research practice and the development of new technologies it offers the first comprehensive and integrated overview of the multiple factors involved in language learning from late preschool through post high school that must be considered if problems are to be effectively addressed practitioners researchers and students professionally concerned with these problems will find the book an invaluable resource

Reading at University 2020-02-22 over the last 25 years reading processes have been the focus of an enormous amount of research in experimental psychology as well as in other disciplines the theories and models emerging from this research have greatly advanced understanding of both normal acquisition and of reading disabilities although great progress has been made there are certain aspects that have been relatively neglected in the current understanding specifically the role of visual factors has received less attention than that of other component processes this is particularly surprising since reading and writing are distinct from the other language processes of speaking and listening in large part by virtue of the fact that a visual dimension is involved relevant research is broadly scattered both geographically and in terms of disciplines and there have been no major reviews or books concerned with the visual dimension of reading and reading disabilities the purpose of this book is to bring together a broad range of evidence that concerns the role of visual information in reading and reading disabilities because reading processes are of central interest to cognitive scientists neuropsychologists psycholinguists clinicians and educators this book should draw a very broad readership

Oversight Hearing on Reading Programs and Hearing on H.R. 8304 and H.R. 9048 1975 the articles in this volume have been written in memory of the feminist biblical scholar fokkelien van dijk hemmes who died at the early age of 50 the authors endeavour to continue and advance the dialogue with her by evaluating and interacting with her scholarly legacy their concern is with various aspects of her work on the hebrew bible and they respond in particular to the feminist hermeneutics she developed for reading biblical texts several articles test her method in application to specific prophetic texts other contributions focus on aspects of the role of women in the cults of ancient israel a third group of essays confronts fokkelien van dijk hemmes approach with more traditional ways of biblical interpretation this book is an important contribution to the ongoing debate on feminist insights into aspects of the literature culture and religion of ancient israel

Children's Reading Comprehension and Assessment 2005-03-23 through the years research on reading has made enormous contributions to helping us understand how students learn to read and how teachers can best instruct them research continues to add to our fundamental knowledge of reading in significant ways thus adding more pieces to the puzzle for example finding answers to how students learn content in other school subjects through reading and what strategies teachers can use to help their students do this more effectively reading research into the year 2000 describes the dynamic process that the department of education engages in to plan and execute a reading research agenda it was written to inform a wide ranging public those who will benefit directly or indirectly from reading research findings including those who use research applications as well as those who conduct the research moreover it was written to make public the process of establishing a national r d center few people outside the department of education are aware of the procedures that are undertaken the editors believe that if more people are in the know they will be more likely to participate in the entire process from generating research ideas to submitting applications and that this greater participation is essential if we are to garner divergent thinking about how to solve critical education research issues they have made a significant step toward breaking down barriers to full participation and paved the way for greater involvement of non traditional players in competing for a national r d center award
