~~Intimate and Personal Care with People with Learning Disabilities 2006-05-25 this book is both a timely and~~
challenging exploration of providing personal care for people with learning disabilities an area of care provision that tends to be neglected in comparison with high profile areas of care management today well researched and presented there is comprehensive coverage of all main aspects of providing intimate and personal care ranging from the wider context culturally sensitive provision sexuality health and hygiene and law to more specific practice areas multi disciplinary working teaching independent living skills people with profound multiple disabilities children and young people and older adults professional social work intimate and personal care with people with learning disabilities edited by steven carnaby and paul cambridge jessica kingsley publishers 19 99 is an academic book but it is fascinating and written to inform and change practice giving intimate care is possibly the most difficult and complex area of care work yet it is rarely analysed and understood in this sort of depth we tend to write rather pompous and detached policies about dignity and privacy and they don t actually help staff to discuss and think through the realities that they face when helping clients with the most intimate situations care plans may generalise and skate over the details leaving residents and staff to do their best in situations that are personally and professionally challenging this is a book for managers of care homes of all kinds who want to develop their team s capacity to think and to understand and thereby to provide the very best care caring times probably the first substantial discussion of and guide to this essential area of care practice a wideranging volume which deserves to be read and kept as a reference volume by all professional teams providing intimate care current awareness service this important guide is the first to consider the management and practice of intimate and personal care for people with learning disabilities it examines in detail aspects of care such as training ethnicity sexuality and competence in practice drawing on the extensive practical experience of the contributors they discuss important issues including the nature of touch how physical contact is intended and experienced carers duty of care and risk management against the backdrop of a recent government strategy for people with learning disabilities the book will also explore management considerations of best value care standards performance monitoring and inspection providing academic professional and learning outcomes from research this book will be an invaluable guide to managers policy makers carers academics and students in the field of social care and learning disability

Prognosis Hope 2019-04-30 in a world where human disconnection is so prevalent prognosis hope restores humanity to ~~healthcare and brings hope back to both caregivers and care seekers patients don't always get the care they deserve~~ and it's time for both caregivers and care seekers to stand up and demand that change before becoming a registered nurse angie felts was hit by a drunk driver she sustained a traumatic brain injury that put her life on hold for nearly twenty years and provides a unique perspective on the dehumanization present in healthcare today in a candid yet entertaining way angie shares her personal story along with the stories of her mentors colleagues and patients to demonstrate her method for human connection prognosis hope a four step method that is simple and easy to implement prognosis hope puts patients back in the driver's seat and enables medical professionals to return to their true callings as healers by celebrating human connection instead of getting bogged down by a diagnosis or complicated care plan angie empowers readers to see that they can change their own lives and leads both caregivers and care seekers back to humanity through joining forces and sharing in the human experience

The Art of Caregiving in Fiction, Film, and Memoir 2022-04-21 bringing together the human story of care with its representation in film fiction and memoir this book combines an analysis of care narratives to inform and inspire ideas about this major role in life alongside analysis of narratives drawn from literature and film the author sensitively interweaves the story of his wife's illness and care to illuminate perspectives on dealing with human decline examining texts from a diverse range of authors such as leo tolstoy edith wharton and alice munro and filmmakers such as ingmar bergman and michael haneke it addresses questions such as why caregiving is a dangerous activity the ethical problems of writing about caregiving the challenges of reading about caregiving and why caregiving is so important it serves as a fire starter on the subject of how we can gain insight into the challenges and opportunities of caregiving through the creative arts

Key Policy Challenges and Opportunities to Improve Care for People with Mental Health and Substance Use Disorders 2020-08-14 behavioral health and substance use disorders affect approximately 20 percent of the u.s. population of those with a substance use disorder approximately 60 percent also have a mental health disorder together these disorders account for a substantial burden of disability have been associated with an increased risk of morbidity and mortality from other chronic illnesses and can be risk factors for incarceration homelessness and death by suicide in addition they can compromise a person's ability to seek out and afford health care and adhere to treatment recommendations to explore data policies practices and systems that affect the diagnosis and provision of care for mental health and substance use disorders the health and medicine division of the national academies of sciences engineering and medicine created the forum on mental health and substance use disorders the forum activities are expected to advance the discussion and generate potential ideas on ways to address many of the most persistent problems in delivering mental health and substance use services the inaugural workshop held october 15-16 2019 in washington dc explored the key policy challenges that impede efforts to improve care for those individuals with mental health and substance use disorders this publication summarizes the presentations and discussion of the workshop

Caring for the Caregiver 2017-09-26 care giving professionals are notoriously poor at looking after themselves they give part of themselves everyday see people at their lowest and most vulnerable as well as being exposed to the physical trauma they deal with acute psychological distress on a daily basis their own and of others learning to still follow your dreams and have personal goals many just put their life on a back burner and let others take over this is a dangerous trait as it leads to unhappiness stress discontentment and burnout many great people are leaving all areas of caring because they feel they are running on empty giving excuses and blame for this to others will not ~~change anything take charge of your life your choices and your outcomes this to a carer will sound selfish but in~~ reality what is going to happen to your patients when you are absent minded make mistakes get upset or angry when you burnout and are no longer able to care for yourself or them looking after yourself is not a luxury it is a necessity being resilient knowing your boundaries and learning to say no are fundamental for your wellbeing and for your patients learn how to off load self sabotaging thoughts beliefs and habits choose what internal and external baggage you carry with you dump outdated thoughts replace them with a more positive protective and proactive outlook to achieve better outcomes caring for the wellbeing of others is a fundamental part of you but learning to care about yourself seems to take a lot of work seeing your needs wants and desires as equal to everyone else is a must by keep giving small pieces of yourself to everyone else when do you have time energy or inclination to give to yourself compassion fatigue is not acknowledge in the northern hemisphere but the feeling of running on empty is undoubtedly known to all professions volunteers and home carers it is a silent killer a demon that will take you emotionally psychologically and physically to exhaustion there are ways for you to feel better to learn to love yourself and to live the life you desire and deserve as well as giving to others you have to take control and get rid of outdated thoughts beliefs and habits to be not just the best professional you can be but the best person for you and for others

Health Care Provision and People with Learning Disabilities 2006-11-02 choice and equity of access to primary and secondary health care services is a priority within all aspects of the nhs however it must be recognised that for some people access to health care can pose difficulties for various reasons people with learning disabilities can present a range of challenges for the people around them during times of ill health any difficulties will become ever more apparent for the health professional working in mainstream primary and secondary care settings these challenges can be difficult to overcome when attempting to identify health needs and deliver holistic care that is responsive to their individual needs health care provision and people with learning disabilities a guide for health professionals provides clear information that will assist mainstream health care providers in gaining greater understanding of people with learning disabilities and managing their health needs each chapter gives the reader information and guidance on dealing with a variety of situations found in health care settings examples of good practice are explained using case examples and experiences of people with learning disabilities and their carers the book describes what is expected from the various health care teams and offers solutions to potential challenges and barriers they may be faced with it includes information regarding specialist support services that can offer assistance to the individual and to the mainstream staff teams while ideas are also offered on how to present information in a format people who have communication difficulties can understand the evidence base for health care provision and people with learning disabilities a guide for health professionals has been drawn from extensive research personal experience policy guidance as well as some of the current legislation that is applicable to this diverse group of people the information shared will prove useful for those working in health settings as well as those undertaking studies in health care
