parts of speech are a central aspect of linguistic theory and analysis though a long established tradition in western linguistics and philosophy has assumed the validity of parts of speech in the study of language there are still many questions left unanswered for example should parts of speech be treated as descriptive tools or are they to be considered universal constructs is it possible to come up with cross linguistically valid formal categories or are categories of language structure ultimately language specific should they be defined semantically syntactically or otherwise do

non indo european languages reveal novel aspects of categorical assignment this volume attempts to answer these and other fundamental questions for linguistic theory and its methodology by offering a range of contributions that spans diverse theoretical persuasions and contributes to our understanding of parts of speech with analyses of new data sets these articles were originally published in studies in language 32 3 2008

this book presents rigorous and criterial definitions of the major parts of speech noun verb and adjective that account both for their syntactic behaviour and for their observed typological variation based on an examination of languages from five different groups salishan cora quechua totonac and hausa this book argues that parts of speech must be defined by combining the criteria of syntactic markedness which characterizes lexical classes in terms of unmarked syntactic roles and semantic prototypicality which delimits their prototypical meanings adjectives are shown to be the marked and hence most variable class because of their inherent non iconicity at the semantics syntax interface the four member typology of parts of speech systems languages with three open classes those that group adjectives with verbs those that group adjectives with nouns and those that conflate all three current in the literature is easily generated by free recombination of these two criterial features closer examination of the data however casts doubt on the existence of one of the four possible language types the noun adjective conflating inventory which is accounted here for by replacing free recombination of semantic and syntactic features with an algorithm for the subdivision of the lexicon that gives primacy to semantics over syntax
