benson was also known as a writer of atmospheric oblique and at times humorous or satirical ghost stories renowned story teller kendall haven brings his expertise as an oceanographer to the authorship of this third book in a four book series intended for teachers to use with students in the upper elementary and middle school grades it focuses on natural phenomena of the sea tides tsunamis sea spouts giant squid killer whales through the eyes of ancient myth and looks at the modern day science that explains each myth using the interdisciplinary style of teaching haven bringing his knowledge of the science of oceanography integrates various scientific fields of oceanic study physical oceanography geologic oceanography biological and chemical oceanography etc to further integrate science curricular areas with the study of myth students will not only be encouraged to appreciate the magic in myth and science but to understand the commonality of all human experience with nature over all time the book contains myths from several different cultures along with accompanying scientific explanations to use with students included are bibliographies recommended sites student projects and discussion and activity ideas illustrations and diagrams enhance student interest the book is to be used by teachers and librarians with students and by students in libraries and classrooms grades 4 8 we were surrounded by five and twenty boatmen each of whom exerted himself to get our custom these were the ciceroni of the blue grotto i chose one and jadin another for you must have a boat and a boatman to get there the opening being so low and so narrow that one cannot enter unless in a very small boat the sea was calm nevertheless even in this beautiful weather it broke with such force against the belt of rocks surrounding the island that our barks bounded as if in a tempest and we were obliged to lie down and cling to the sides to avoid being thrown into the sea at last after three quarters of an hour of navigation during which we skirted about one sixth of the island s circumference our boatmen informed us of our arrival we looked about us but we could not perceive the slightest suspicion of a grotto until we made out with difficulty a little black circular point above the foaming waves this was the orifice of the vault the first sight of this entrance was not reässuring you could not understand how it was possible to clear it without breaking your head against the rocks as the question seemed important enough for discussion i put it to my boatman who replied that we were perfectly right in remaining seated now but presently we must lie down to avoid the danger we had not come so far as this to flinch it was my turn first my boatman advanced rowing with precaution and indicating that accustomed as he was to the work he could not regard it as exempt from danger as for me from the position that i occupied i could see nothing but the sky soon i felt myself rising upon a wave the boat slid down it rapidly and i saw nothing but a rock that seemed for a second to weigh upon my breast then suddenly i found myself in a grotto so marvellous that i gave a cry of astonishment and i jumped up so quickly to look about me that i nearly capsized the boat in reality before me around me above me under me and behind me were marvels of which no description can give an idea and before which the brush itself the grand preserver of human memories is powerless you must imagine an immense cavern entirely of azure just as if god had amused himself by making a pavilion with fragments of the firmament water so limpid so transparent and so pure that you seemed floating upon dense air from the ceiling stalactites hanging like inverted pyramids in the background a golden sand mingled with submarine vegetation along the walls which were bathed by the water there were trees of coral with irregular and dazzling branches at the sea entrance a tiny point a star let in the half light that illumines this fairy palace finally at the opposite end a kind of stage arranged like the throne of a splendid goddess who has chosen one of the wonders of the world for her baths experience the transformative power of spiritual nuclear prayer applying blood of jesus for prophetic wonders and miracles a potent christian book that delves deep into the
