from the preface the solid fortunes have been amassed through investment and not made by speculation they have been built up by men who have developed character and will power who have created depth and breadth of mind through concentration and experience rather than by men of exceptional native brilliancy the serious practice of investment is a sturdy and businesslike pursuit it is in fact at the root of every business as an art it depends on no mystery or occult secret it consists of learning facts that are within the common reach and of applying principles capable of being assimilated the purpose of this book is to present an outline of principles it is not a manual of facts the discussion moreover is confined to the principles governing the investment of personal funds excluding the canons of institutional and trustee investment which is concerned with the funds of others yet even as thus limited the subject is vast and the outline presented is not intended as an exhaustive treatment but merely as a foundation for orderly reasoning and inquiry some men come to knowledge of the key to constructive or wealth upbuilding investment in one way some in another there are men in every line of business who arrive at it early and forge ahead of their fellows the writer in setting forth principles professes no ready formula or open sesame save one that work brings mastery it is his aim to discuss the problem of the individual who invests in bonds and stocks with such comment description and analysis as may help the investor in working to a solution constructive investment is not speculation neither is it investing solely for income constructive investment is the middle course between these two extremes which is directed to the purposeful upbuilding of principal while maintaining the safeguards of income in the faith that the individual may have results from his labor and intelligence and in the conviction that the greatest safety comes from knowledge and application the writer discusses this type of investment for those who are able and willing to invest work with their money the aim of this book is to present in clear form the simple principles of investment and to afford the reader a working knowledge of the various classes of securities which are available as investments and their relative adaptability to different needs the book is an outgrowth of the writer s personal experience as an investment banker their intrinsic characteristics have changed in no regard except for their possibility of appreciation in provided cost estimate has become unequivocally more splendid their fall in cost has been because of two elements one general and the other unique first the retention of fluid capital and ensuing ascent in loan fees occasioned by the uncommon business action of the nation and second the negative specialized position of the bonds in view of an expanded stockpile despite a diminished interest it will be seen that the subject of keeping up with the trustworthiness of the cash contributed involves extraordinary significance and may rank as a fifth figure deciding the determination of speculations altho it s anything but an innate nature of every venture except is reliant for its impact upon general circumstances if it is fundamental for the financial backer that his security shouldn t shrivel into the cost estimate provided his best venture is a land contract which isn t referenced and subsequently doesn t change for them
